KABUL - Senior officials from former president Hamid Karzai's cabinet said the peace process is facing a crisis. Addressing guests at an event to mark the launch of a new political movement, former government officials and some analysts said the peace process is facing a crisis and that Kabul and the international community lack the will to jeopardize the reconciliation process.

The former officials said the US’s strategy “does not mean a victory against the Taliban”. “A just competition and just environment and just proceedings are impossible in a system where its leaders are...”

KABUL - DABS has announced the first phase of reconstruction work on the two turbines has been completed. Officials from the Afghan power supply company Da Afghanistan Boshna Shirkay (DABS) on Thursday said reconstruction work on the first phase of two turbines at Naghlo Power Dam has been done.

With the completion of reconstruction work on the turbines, the power dam will be able to generate an additional 25-megawatts of electricity, said the officials. DABS said that work on the third turbine of the dam will be completed in the next six months. (...More on P1-3)

Afghanistan Has a Passing Reference in Pompeo’s Confirmation Hearing Remarks

WASHINGTON - Situation in Afghanistan, where the United States is engaged in the longest war in its history, found a passing reference in the 15-page confirmation hearing of Mike Pompeo for the post of the US Secretary of State. Pompeo is currently the Director of CIA. If confirmed by the Senate, he would replace John Kerry as the top diplomat of the US.

President Donald Trump, who has repeatedly called for a negotiated settlement to end the war, has long said that leaving Afghanistan is a difficult decision for him. He, however, has not given a specific timeframe for America’s exit from the country.

Pompeo, during his confirmation hearing before the Senate, said: “We are not going to negotiate from a position of weakness. We are not going to negotiate from a position of strength. We are going to negotiate from a position of strength. We are going to negotiate from a position of...”

Shell Says 19°C Change in Afghanistan Will Cost US $14 Billion

KABUL - One year ago on this day, the US forces dropped the biggest non-nuclear bomb on a Daesh stronghold in Achin district, in the east of Afghanistan. The bomb was dropped to eliminate the insurgent group’s biggest hideout in the country.

However, Daesh is still active in parts of Achin district as well as in other regions in Afghanistan. “Their (Daesh) powerful stronghold, in Achin, Pachiragam, Chaparhar and Khogyani districts (in Nangarhar) have been destroyed.”

Amnesty Hails Kabul Efforts for Cut in Executions

The Amnesty has welcomed efforts of the Afghan government for limiting such executions. Of eleven people sentenced to death last year over murder and other serious crimes, five were hanged in 2017 compared six in 2016. The five. (...More on P6-10)

Voter Registration
Set to Launch Today

OFFICIALS from the IEC said the first phase of the voter registration process will start today.

Those eligible to vote will be able to register at the various centres around the country, said an IEC commissioner Sayed Hafiz Hashemi. Meanwhile residents in Kabul said the public is largely unaware of the procedure.

Until now I know...”

Naghol Dam Turbines up and Running

KABUL - DABS has announced the first phase of reconstruction work on the two turbines has been completed. Officials from the Afghan power supply company Da Afghanistan Boshna Shirkay (DABS) on Thursday said reconstruction work on the first phase of two turbines at Naghlo Power Dam has been done.

With the completion of reconstruction work on the turbines, the power dam will be able to generate an additional 25-megawatts of electricity, said the officials. DABS said that work on the third turbine of the dam will be completed in the next six months. (...More on P1-3)

Afghanistan Has a Passing Reference in Pompeo’s Confirmation Hearing Remarks

WASHINGTON - Situation in Afghanistan, where the United States is engaged in the longest war in its history, found a passing reference in the 15-page confirmation hearing of Mike Pompeo for the post of the US Secretary of State. Pompeo is currently the Director of CIA. If confirmed by the Senate, he would replace John Kerry as the top diplomat of the US.

President Donald Trump, who has repeatedly called for a negotiated settlement to end the war, has long said that leaving Afghanistan is a difficult decision for him. He, however, has not given a specific timeframe for America’s exit from the country.

Pompeo, during his confirmation hearing before the Senate, said: “We are not going to negotiate from a position of weakness. We are not going to negotiate from a position of strength. We are going to negotiate from a position of strength. We are going to negotiate from a position of...”

Shell Says 19°C Change in Afghanistan Will Cost US $14 Billion

KABUL - One year ago on this day, the US forces dropped the biggest non-nuclear bomb on a Daesh stronghold in Achin district, in the east of Afghanistan. The bomb was dropped to eliminate the insurgent group’s biggest hideout in the country.

However, Daesh is still active in parts of Achin district as well as in other regions in Afghanistan. “Their (Daesh) powerful stronghold, in Achin, Pachiragam, Chaparhar and Khogyani districts (in Nangarhar) have been destroyed.”

Amnesty Hails Kabul Efforts for Cut in Executions

The Amnesty has welcomed efforts of the Afghan government for limiting such executions. Of eleven people sentenced to death last year over murder and other serious crimes, five were hanged in 2017 compared six in 2016. The five. (...More on P6-10)