Lack of Oversight on Performance at Government Institutions Exacerbates the Sorry State of Governance & Public Services (Part 1)

By Mohammed Gul Sabihzaddeh

In the advent of establishment of new political order in Afghanistan after the military withdrawal of NATO and US forces in late 2021, Government institutions in Afghanistan were equipoise and existing in a limbo stage. But the NAD and international community has not supplied the required technical, financial and legislative support to Afghanistan. Consequently, Government institutions in Afghanistan are in charge of addressing and improving the services and responsiveness of the citizens. Many IDPs and non-state actors have contributed to the chaos and development in the country. However, the Afghan government is trying to provide the services and to improve the living standards of the citizens. But the lack of coordination and legislative support to the Government institutions has not reflected on the services.

The Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time. The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.

The Afghan government has made inroads in the process of reconstruction of Government institutions to improve the current status quo. The reason is that the same government has made efforts by Government leaders at various ministries and institutions to improve the current status quo. As pointed out, one way to relieve to negotiations and retain the ability to deny the other party, are back making concessions. As Afghan government is determined to reach to a sustainable peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms and this applies to the withdrawal of the peace negotiation, such act should ensure the basic rights and freedoms to the concerned time.