Hekmatyar Says his Party Will Elect Next President

KABUL - Badakhshan, after Kunduz, is one of the insecure provinces in the north of Afghanistan, among the largest number of war-displaced people. More war-displaced people in Badakhshan decide to live in dire conditions in the mountain slopes of Fizabad.

They said that due to war in Police Department of Fizabad, the displaced people of Badakhshan leave their homes and come to the mountains but the lack of facilities for their living, especially food, makes life difficult for them.

During the past six months clashes in Badakhshan have left hundreds of families without shelter and forced them to leave their entire livelihood behind them. Consequently, the displaced people do not have food or clothes and no one is helping us. We are living in a tent," said Zamin, a displaced woman. "We are now in a bad situation and the government must help us," another displaced woman, Hameema said.
