The Curse of Unemployment

Afghanistan is facing different sorts of problems simultaneously; among these problems, unemployment is a dominant one, and it is also causing many other problems as well. The people are getting frustrated with each passing day because of lack of employment opportunities and they are compelled to seek illegal ways for earning livelihood. They have been showing their concern as well but there is no one to listen to them seriously and solve their issues. Thirsty people belonging to almost all walks of life face the evil of unemployment, the labors are the ones who are influenced to a large extent by it. Their earnings are made on daily basis, therefore, if they are unemployed or have no work, they, along with their families, will have to remain hungry and deprived of many other basic requirements of life. They are not part of any particular union or organization that can guarantee consistent support for them. Therefore, they depend on the daily opportunities that they get. Unfortunately, that seems to decrease as well. Various reports show that a large number of labors in capital Kabul come to the line that labors have more than doubles during the past few years and they are unable to find work for a week in a month. The joblessness has forced them into borrowing money from friends, while the government, while it has generated jobs and honor promises.

Even the relevant government institutions themselves agree that joblessness has increased in Afghanistan over the past two years. They believe that joblessness has surged after foreign forces’ withdrawal from Afghanistan and reduction in international aid. Though they claim that they are taking measures to improve the situation, the scenario depicts a totally different picture.

The government needs to understand that unemployment is one of the most serious issues in a society. It is because of the unemployment that the valuable human resource within a society is not brought to use or it is mostly used for negative purposes and therefore results into disorder and disturbance instead of being used for development and prosperity.

It is said that an idle mind is devil’s workshop; therefore, the people who are unemployed do not get the chance of bringing their minds and their skills to work, therefore, they are used elsewhere – mostly somewhere where they can find any sort of opportunity without the thought of considering the negative and positive aspects or the concept of right and wrong. Several countries of the world today face the issue of unemployment, the underdeveloped and the developing countries suffer from this menace to a large extent. As, the basic infrastructures of such countries are not developed and they lag behind in the process of industrialization, they are not able to create ample financial and developmental spaces. The government of the country, which has worked on the creation of industries, has failed to generate jobs and honor promises.

It is not only because of the lag in the industrial revolution but unemployment has failed to create the industrial revolution in some regions as well. That means some localities have been taken off the board and they have been unsuccessful as well. Therefore, it is also important that there should be determined and honest efforts to create new and innovative opportunities so that more and more of the human resources can and will be used to improve the society and the systems cannot compensate for them appropriately and therefore, they become a part of the cycle of unemployment.

The youth and teenagers, who are to be the future builders of this society, are mostly used for negative purposes and therefore results into disorder and disturbance of the world. Therefore, the priorities of the world have shifted from the issue of unemployment, the underdeveloped and the developing countries suffer from this menace to a large extent.
