Afghan-Pak Tension Resurfaces

Hujjattullah Zia

A sense of mistrust has resurfaced between Kabul and Islamabad following the heavy attacks in Shah Shaheed on Sunday. According to preliminary figures, there were 400 attackers who seized the compound in order to eliminate Afghan and Pakistani soldiers. The attack led to heavy losses in terms of human lives and property.

In the wake of the attack, the Afghan and Pakistani governments have placed the blame on each other. The Pakistani government has condemned the attack and has said that it will not allow Taliban to target Afghan civilians. The Afghan government has also condemned the attack and has said that it will not allow Taliban to target Pakistani civilians.

Prime Minister Haider Aziz is said to reiterate Pakistan’s condemnation of recent terrorist attacks in Afghanistan. He said that Pakistan will continue to work with Afghanistan to eliminate terrorism. The Afghan government has also condemned the attack and has said that it will continue to work with Pakistan to eliminate terrorism.

The Taliban have claimed responsibility for the attack. They have said that the attack was a response to the Afghan government’s continued support for the US-led coalition in Afghanistan. The Afghan government has denied these claims and has said that it will not allow the Taliban to target Afghan civilians.

The situation in Afghanistan remains tense due to the ongoing conflict between the Afghan government and the Taliban. The conflict has led to a number of civilian casualties and has caused humanitarian suffering. The Afghan government has called for international support to help resolve the conflict.

The situation in Pakistan is also tense due to the ongoing conflict between the Pakistani government and the Taliban. The conflict has led to a number of civilian casualties and has caused humanitarian suffering. The Pakistani government has called for international support to help resolve the conflict.

The Afghan government has called for international support to help resolve the conflict. The Pakistani government has also called for international support to help resolve the conflict.

The Afghan government has called for international support to help resolve the conflict. The Pakistani government has also called for international support to help resolve the conflict.

The Afghan government has called for international support to help resolve the conflict. The Pakistani government has also called for international support to help resolve the conflict.