KABUL - A presidential candidate, Latif Pedram on Thursday after launching his electioneering said he would change the structure of the government if he won the election. Latif Pedram, one of the 18 presidential candidates launched his election campaign today.

So far, Mohammad Ashraf Ghani, Abdullah Abdullah, Ramezanullah Sahil, Ghausul Mamour Sadiq, Sired Nooruddin Jalili, Mohammad Shahab Hakimi, Mohammad Ibrahim Alkazay and Ahmad Wali Massoud launched their electioneering since last 18 days when the process began.

Pedram criticized the government and said the term of the current administration was ended and it lost its legitimacy. He said he would change the government system and create Islamic federal government if he won the ballot.

He said he would divide the structure of the country to federal zones and would give people authority to manage their economic, social and military issues in their administrations. “No ethnic group would get damaged in the system we suggest, it would maintain the rights of all tribes,” he said.

Pedram said people of each area would ensure their own security if he wins the poll. “I will hand over security responsibility to local people because they know better about their own areas and they can better defend themselves. It is not a good idea when a soldier from Kandahar province is deployed to Badakhshan to fight,” he said.

He said that he would recognize all languages like in Switzerland so that people of each area can speak their own language.

He said that he would prefer social economy market instead of open economy market. “The economic system would be also take a federal shape, in this system, workers would get their salaries and would have a share in factory productions,” he said.

“it is our plan that 60 percent of economic activities in Afghanistan would be also in open economy market, and 40 percent used in the own province and income of a province would be the result of open economy market. “It is our plan that 60 percent of economic activities in Afghanistan would be also in open economy market, and 40 percent used in the own province and income of a province would be the result of open economy market,” he said.

It is the result of preparation, hard work and learning from failure.”

EU Supports Honorable Afghan Peace, Presidential Polls

President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani and European Union Ambassador to Afghanistan Piraye Maymadoon during a meeting discussed a range of issues including presidential election and economic cooperation.

EU Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

The UK announced a financial package of £8 million to the Afghan election process. This includes a planned contribution of £4 million to support preparations for the Presidential election.

British Ambassador, Alison Blake said, “I am pleased that through this contribution the UK can continue to support Afghanistan’s democratic process. The UK strongly supports elections in Afghanistan in order that the Afghan people can have their rightful say in the future of their country.”

The UK reiterates the importance of credible Presidential elections taking place timely. Elections are another step towards a more stable and democratic future for Afghanistan. We welcome the Afghan Government’s own financial commitments to the electoral process, which is key to long term sustainability.“

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

The world-system of foreign aid is descended from the world-system of colonialism. Foreign aid is a form of economic dominance and exploitation, just like colonialism. It is used to control the economies of poor countries, prevent them from developing their own industries, and ensure their dependence on the wealthy countries that provide the aid. The conditionality attached to foreign aid is another form of economic domination, where countries are forced to make decisions that are in favor of the wealthy nations. Foreign aid is not a gift, but a tool for exploitation and control.

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

The world-system of foreign aid is descended from the world-system of colonialism. Foreign aid is a form of economic dominance and exploitation, just like colonialism. It is used to control the economies of poor countries, prevent them from developing their own industries, and ensure their dependence on the wealthy countries that provide the aid. The conditionality attached to foreign aid is another form of economic domination, where countries are forced to make decisions that are in favor of the wealthy nations. Foreign aid is not a gift, but a tool for exploitation and control.

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

The world-system of foreign aid is descended from the world-system of colonialism. Foreign aid is a form of economic dominance and exploitation, just like colonialism. It is used to control the economies of poor countries, prevent them from developing their own industries, and ensure their dependence on the wealthy countries that provide the aid. The conditionality attached to foreign aid is another form of economic domination, where countries are forced to make decisions that are in favor of the wealthy nations. Foreign aid is not a gift, but a tool for exploitation and control.

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

The world-system of foreign aid is descended from the world-system of colonialism. Foreign aid is a form of economic dominance and exploitation, just like colonialism. It is used to control the economies of poor countries, prevent them from developing their own industries, and ensure their dependence on the wealthy countries that provide the aid. The conditionality attached to foreign aid is another form of economic domination, where countries are forced to make decisions that are in favor of the wealthy nations. Foreign aid is not a gift, but a tool for exploitation and control.

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

UK Announces £8 Million Financial Contribution for Presidential Elections

The world-system of foreign aid is descended from the world-system of colonialism. Foreign aid is a form of economic dominance and exploitation, just like colonialism. It is used to control the economies of poor countries, prevent them from developing their own industries, and ensure their dependence on the wealthy countries that provide the aid. The conditionality attached to foreign aid is another form of economic domination, where countries are forced to make decisions that are in favor of the wealthy nations. Foreign aid is not a gift, but a tool for exploitation and control.