Scores of Talibans Perish in Helmand Airstrikes

At least 11 Taliban fighters were killed and several others were wounded in an air strike in southwestern Helmand province early on Saturday, local officials said.

The strike took place in Blab Valley of the district, which were aimed at launching rockets in the provincial capital, the military sources added.

"The Taliban fighters were killed, and many of them were injured," a local official said.

Air Corps, said Afghan and foreign forces airstrikes in the district on Saturday night. He said the air attack targeted a Taliban hideout in the district in recent times.

"We targeted a Taliban hideout in the district with a series of air strikes earlier this week, but the attack did not result in any casualties," the official said.

Many civilians have been killed and wounded in the region in recent months due to continued fighting between government forces and Taliban.

NDS Tainted Logar Uprising Group Leader

PLJ-BALAM - The National Director of Information (NDS) found dead, according to a relative, the body of a male with black hair and tattoos in the district in recent times.

"The NDS official was found dead in his home, with traces of blood and bruises on his body," the relative said.

The NDS official had been a prominent figure in the local political scene and had previously served as a member of the local council.

He was known for his strong anti-Taliban stance and had been involved in several political and social initiatives in the area.

In recent months, tensions have been high in the region, with reports of increased fighting between government forces and Taliban.

The NDS official's death is likely to further escalate tensions in the area, with both government forces and Taliban groups vying for control.

Police Claim Thwarting Possible Rocket Strike in Kabul

KABUL - Security forces thwarted a possible rocket attack by defusing four rockets and detaining four suspects in the capital.

"The rockets were defused in a residential area," a police spokesperson said.

"The suspects were detained and we are investigating the matter," the spokesperson added.

The incident comes amid heightened security concerns in Kabul, with reports of increased fighting between government forces and Taliban.

Enraged Protestors Torch Police Post after Artificial’s Murder

JALALABAD - Enraged protestors torched a police post in Jalandar after a man was killed by the police.

"The man was killed in an argument with the police," a witness said.

"The protestors were angry and burned the police post," the witness added.

The incident highlights the growing unrest in the area, with protests and violence frequently occurring in the region.
