Majority of Afghans want the Govt System Changed: Poll

KABUL - Afghanistan's cabinet has unanimously adopted a plan paving the way for a single-seat constituency system in the election law. But government's move for the single-seat system has drawn mixed responses from election observers and monitoring groups with some arguing that the new plan could face challenges amid the prevailing situation in the country. Observers have said that the plan needs long-term efforts to be implemented. A single-seat district or single-seat constituency is an electoral district that sends one representative to a body, with multiple members such as a legislature. It is also sometimes called single-winner voting or winner-take-all situation.

Task Team Finds Dahna-E-Ghorii Fell Without A Battle

KABUL: The task team assigned to probe the fall of Dahna-E-Ghorii district of Laghman, last week, said on Tuesday that preliminary findings show the Taliban reportedly infiltrated the area without facing resistance from security forces. The task team said that it will refer its findings to the president in a few days once their investigations into the fall of the district have been finalized.

Women Rally Against Occupation of Their Land in Nangarhar

JALALABAD - A number of women on Tuesday staged a protest demonstration against usurping their lands by tribal elders in eastern Nangarhar province and threatened self-immolation if their properties were not returned to them. The protesters gathered at the Pushistan Square and carried banners inscribed with names of the alleged land usurpers including Malak Nizam and Dawood. The female, "(More on PNL-127)"
