Taliban Ears Political Leverage at National & International Levels as Afghan Government Failed to Assert Itself

By Mohammed Gul Sahibbzada

The failure to manage the most important national projects – that include upcoming parliamentary elections and the implementation of security situation around the election, because of a selective without whole of government people inclusive approach. Unless there is proper planning, preparation and coordination, the peace negotiations with the Taliban will not take off and the issue of elections will be the most important national project which the government has failed to achieve.

The war is going on in many provinces and the solution is to stop rather than stepping elections. Hence, the government is responsible to conduct free, fair and general elections.

The government is responsible to conduct free, fair and general elections. Hence, the government is responsible to conduct free, fair and general elections.