August 29, 2019

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Most Kind

Peace Talks Remain Ambiguous

The backsliding talks between the Taliban and US representatives in Qatar’s capital have led to worries among the Afghan public. There is uncertainty about the outcome of the talks. Their normalization in the talks is intimidating. All out, with the upcoming presidential elections, a number of individuals and groups in Afghanistan are conducting was said earlier that the Taliban and their US interlocutors supported an interim government, however, Afghan President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani held his ground and insisted that elections would be conducted – Presidential candidates, including Ghani, continue their presidential campaigns.

Afghan women are worried and fear if the return of the Taliban. Emanate curtail their freedoms. The women also feel themselves sidelined in the talks. ‘A cancerous’ feeling, although Afghan women are their concern when they hear about the news, talks to the elections and vice versa. The Taliban is the threat of violent resistance and their US interlocutors supported an interim government, which was reported by some media outlets. As US and Taliban negotiators push to wrap up talks aimed at ending their war with the Afghan government and ceasefire, but the Taliban seem to continue their fight against Ghani administration. Meanwhile, some political pundits are not optimistic about the peace talks and worry that the US-Taliban agreement may be turned into another useless and vexing neutrality in the talks. ‘As a critic of the agreement, which was signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.

On the other hand, the Taliban have been analysed by some social scientists as political organizations, rather than anti-government groups. E.g. the Afghan government and foreign forces, as well as the US and Taliban negotiators up talks almost securing the withdrawal of foreign forces, ceasefire negotiations and ending the Talibans’ fight with the Kabul government. US has also been pressuring the Taliban to agree to talks with the Afghan government and civilian leaders, but the Taliban seem to continue their fight against Ghani administration.

Bhutto said that by US President Donald Trump - who said that Washington was not rushing to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do. As the 1988 Geneva Accords, signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.

Bhutto said that by US President Donald Trump - who said that Washington was not rushing to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do. As the 1988 Geneva Accords, signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.

Bhutto said that by US President Donald Trump - who said that Washington was not rushing to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do. As the 1988 Geneva Accords, signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.

Bhutto said that by US President Donald Trump - who said that Washington was not rushing to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do. As the 1988 Geneva Accords, signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.

Bhutto said that by US President Donald Trump - who said that Washington was not rushing to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do. As the 1988 Geneva Accords, signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.

Bhutto said that by US President Donald Trump - who said that Washington was not rushing to do what a large number of Western forces have not/have not been able to do. As the 1988 Geneva Accords, signed by the Afghan and Pakistani governments with the US and the Soviet Union in 1985, the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict. Therefore, it seems that the US-Taliban agreement is the only armed opposition fueling the conflict.