Panel for Combating Human Trafficking Has No Bank Account Yet.

KABUL - Officials of the High Commission for Combating Trafficking in Person claimed making headway in arresting individuals involved in human smuggling. But the old trick of avoiding court and thus unable to create a bank account for the panel so far. The commission was set up in 2011 under the chairmanship of the justice minister.

The panel was set up to coordinate efforts with the ministries of interior, foreign, hajj, public health, information, refuges and women affairs.

The Supreme Court, the Afghanistan independent human rights commission (AIHRC), National Directorate of Security (NDS), Attorney General's Office (AGO) and civil society organisations are part of the body. The technical committees and provincial wings of the commission also were formed and made functional. The 16-month period is led by the justice minister.

Interior Ministry's senior secretary on security affairs, deputy investigation officer at AIO, Supreme Court, AIHRC and civil society representatives, secretaries of the mission concerned, deputy director of NDS and heads of the Union of Legal Experts and Defense Lawyers Union are members of the commission.

The commission has held 21 meetings since its inauguration at leader level. Some sessions had been conducted to review different issues, including achieving a number of combating human trafficking.

No Female Journalist in Zabul, Complain Residents

KABUL - The question before the public is how Daesh militants and their families manage to enter Afghan territory, said an official on Sunday. The MoI has previously confirmed existence of foreign fighters among its personnel.

However, the MoI has previously confirmed the existence of foreign fighters in the country. It said that there is a need for investiga-