RUSSIAN TU-160 STRATEGIC BOMBERS LAND IN VENEZUELA AFTER 10,000KM TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT

CARACAS - Venezuela has welcomed the first of two Russian Tu-160 strategic bombers as an opportunity for demonstrating the resolve of the nation against possible foreign military intervention. It is an action that is seen by friends of “friendship” if need be.

Two Tu-160 strategic bombers made a grand landing at Anaconda International Airport on Monday where they were refueled and supported by soldiers of the Venezuelan Air Force, and Venezuela “will sell it off with our friends who advocate respect-based relations between states,” Defense Minister Vladimir Padrino said.

The Tu-160, also known as the “White Swan” and marked with the call number 01, became the biggest migrant route into Venezuela, according to Padrino. The First Deputy of the President of the Constituent Assembly, Padrino said that the two Tu-160s will be handed to the Venezuelan government.

The Tu-160 dropped the first bombs on Tuesday on the Venezuelan state of Aragua.
