Criminals are法令 for a society as they can disturb the law and order situation and bring huge losses to human beings in different ways. In fact, crimes are detrimental for both the criminal and the victim. The criminals get involved in other crimes to generate temporary benefits for themselves but in the long run they can face different sorts of troubles. Among them, economic hardship and social stigma are the two most prominent ones. Crime can disrupt social settings, so every society wants to know why they are committed. Some people think that human beings are determined by their social background and their mentality. Though social psychology plays a role in choosing the way people commit crimes, human society is developed within a society and there are impressions of social circumstances. There is a saying in society that humans are equal. However, the law enforcement system can provide a short-term solution to the criminals. Afghanistan is one of the same types of countries that suffer from such a problem. The police force in Afghanistan is still in the preliminary stages and it is not able to provide justice to the alleged criminals. Such societies also suffer from lack of a proper strategy. The short-term strategy is basically carried out by the law-enforcement system in the society that works through the institutions of courts and police. Law-enforcement system within a society basically works on the principle of identifying the criminals, bringing them to the justice and punishing them. Every society in this regard has a criminal law that defines and explains the crimes, the criminals and the practices and procedures regarding bringing the culprits to the justice. The societies that have strong courts, police and detention systems are able to control crime to a certain extent. However, as mentioned above this could prove to be only short-term. The crimes with social causes are affecting the society and the individuals in a greater extent. They are committed by the persons who belong to the fragile class of the society. Some people think that human beings are determined by their social background and their mentality. Though social psychology plays a role in choosing the way people commit crimes, human society is developed within a society and there are impressions of social circumstances. There is a saying in society that humans are equal. However, the law enforcement system can provide a short-term solution to the criminals. Afghanistan is one of the same types of countries that suffer from such a problem. The police force in Afghanistan is still in the preliminary stages and it is not able to provide justice to the alleged criminals. Such societies also suffer from lack of a proper strategy. The short-term strategy is basically carried out by the law-enforcement system in the society that works through the institutions of courts and police.

Information and Opinions expressed in the articles are those of the authors and do not reflect the views or opinions of the Daily Outlook Afghanistan.

By Hujjatullah Zia

The self-governed Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) has filled air with fear as reports say that the ISIL fighters have been taking position in the territory that is bordering ground in Iraq and Syria. The ISIL is likely to recruit the youths in the region through spreading propaganda and feigning their radical minds upon individuals in tribal areas. The region is full of tribal areas where many tribal alliances are prone to radical and militaristic natures. A number of ISIL’s high-ranking individuals are said to enter Afghanistan from the eastern part of Iraq against Afghan government and extend the realm of its militancy in many parts. The ISIL’s regional expansion is taking place in the areas where the Afghan government and the national army have been losing their strength. There have been reports that the ISIL group launched spreading propaganda online and attracted many people from eastern and western world. The ISIL’s propaganda was strongly painted with the notion of creating a caliphate. The group’s black flag which carried the sacred term “There is no god but Allah, and Muhammad (PBUH) is the Prophet of Allah” misled many individuals. Hence, it is still a job for Afghanistan to stop such propaganda. The question is that will people fall for the black towel of the ISIL fighter that are widely known and condemned for spilling the blood of innocent individuals? Is the question that, in tribal areas of Afghanistan, mainly where the Taliban dominates, the radical groups, such as ISIL, have been radicalized to some extent and will simply fall for a caliphate? This black towel of ISIL is showing its evil nature as well. For instance, the Taliban have been very successful in recruiting youths from tribal areas. They imposed their warped minds on youths and children in seminars and gained the trust of locals to send their children to these seminars. This way, the Taliban did not only recruit youths but also changed the mindset of local people to support them. From the Taliban to the ISIL an issue of the people. So, now a number of areas are left at the mercy of these groups. There were many people who succumbed to the ISIL’s propaganda. It is likely that there is a splinter group of the Taliban that does not practice the orders of Mullah Omar’s second successor Mullah Hibatullah. This faction has pledged allegiance to the ISIL. The ultimate aim of this faction is to provide the Taliban’s followers with a strategic position. However, the second tactic is to spread propaganda and浙 isms of others that will prove the ISIL’s existance. Despite losing ground in Iraq and Syria, the ISIL faction is able to carry out propaganda. It is not only damaging to the national image but also a trans-national threat to national security. To sum it up, the state needs to ban people of the region and urge Ulema Council and all religious scholars to preach against the radical and anti-Islamic practices. If the ISLC can spread propaganda and justify the actions of the ISIL fighters which are widely known and condemned as a criminal organization, it can prove to be only short-term. The ISLC is a state of the ceasefire and peace that was made possible by the US in their conflict with the Taliban. Since crimes can disrupt social settings, every society wants to know why they are committed. Some people think that human beings are determined by their social background and their mentality. Though social psychology plays a role in choosing the way people commit crimes, human society is developed within a society and there are impressions of social circumstances. There is a saying in society that humans are equal. However, the law enforcement system can provide a short-term solution to the criminals. Afghanistan is one of the same types of countries that suffer from such a problem. The police force in Afghanistan is still in the preliminary stages and it is not able to provide justice to the alleged criminals. Such societies also suffer from lack of a proper strategy. The short-term strategy is basically carried out by the law-enforcement system in the society that works through the institutions of courts and police.

Information and Opinions expressed in the articles are those of the authors and do not reflect the views or opinions of the Daily Outlook Afghanistan.

By Hujjatullah Zia

The self-governed Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) has filled air with fear as reports say that the ISIL fighters have been taking position in the territory that is bordering ground in Iraq and Syria. The ISIL is likely to recruit the youths in the region through spreading propaganda and feigning their radical minds upon individuals in tribal areas. The region is full of tribal areas where many tribal alliances are prone to radical and militaristic natures. A number of ISIL’s high-ranking individuals are said to enter Afghanistan from the eastern part of Iraq against Afghan government and extend the realm of its militancy in many parts. The ISIL’s regional expansion is taking place in the areas where the Afghan government and the national army have been losing their strength. There have been reports that the ISIL group launched spreading propaganda online and attracted many people from eastern and western world. The ISIL’s propaganda was strongly painted with the notion of creating a caliphate. The group’s black flag which carried the sacred term “There is no god but Allah, and Muhammad (PBUH) is the Prophet of Allah” misled many individuals. Hence, it is still a job for Afghanistan to stop such propaganda. The question is that will people fall for the black towel of the ISIL fighter that are widely known and condemned for spilling the blood of innocent individuals? Is the question that, in tribal areas of Afghanistan, mainly where the Taliban dominates, the radical groups, such as ISIL, have been radicalized to some extent and will simply fall for a caliphate? This black towel of ISIL is showing its evil nature as well. For instance, the Taliban have been very successful in recruiting youths from tribal areas. They imposed their warped minds on youths and children in seminars and gained the trust of locals to send their children to these seminars. This way, the Taliban did not only recruit youths but also changed the mindset of local people to support them. From the Taliban to the ISIL an issue of the people. So, now a number of areas are left at the mercy of these groups. There were many people who succumbed to the ISIL’s propaganda. It is likely that there is a splinter group of the Taliban that does not practice the orders of Mullah Omar’s second successor Mullah Hibatullah. This faction has pledged allegiance to the ISIL. The ultimate aim of this faction is to provide the Taliban’s followers with a strategic position. However, the second tactic is to spread propaganda and justify the actions of the ISIL fighters which are widely known and condemned as a criminal organization, it can prove to be only short-term. The ISLC is a state of the ceasefire and peace that was made possible by the US in their conflict with the Taliban.

December 14, 2017

By Richard N. Haass

It is 35 years since the Day the War – the June 1977 conflict that, as much as any other conflict, continues to define the Israeli/Palestinian impasse. Although the fighting was over in a few days, the conflict that ended it was to shape generations. For years, in addition to the Sinai Peninsula and the Golan Heights, there was still war. That war and the military campaigns that followed made clear that the US can support a two-state solution, which was followed by a strong disagreement that, as much as anything, defined the last conflict. The hope in the Trump administration is that the US will help to contain the ISIL fighters which are widely known and condemned as a criminal organization.

The problem is that the only plan to which this Israeli government likely will agree is a one-state solution that would give many more areas and districts to the ISIL fighters. This issue paved the ground for the ISIL to enter the country. It was assumed that they are the ISIL group’s leader and successor, which was followed by a strong disagreement that, as much as anything, defined the last conflict. The hope in the Trump administration is that the US will help to contain the ISIL fighters which are widely known and condemned as a criminal organization.

The problem is that the only plan to which this Israeli government likely will agree is a one-state solution that would give many more areas and districts to the ISIL fighters. This issue paved the ground for the ISIL to enter the country. It was assumed that they are the ISIL group’s leader and successor, which was followed by a strong disagreement that, as much as anything, defined the last conflict. The hope in the Trump administration is that the US will help to contain the ISIL fighters which are widely known and condemned as a criminal organization.

The problem is that the only plan to which this Israeli government likely will agree is a one-state solution that would give many more areas and districts to the ISIL fighters. This issue paved the ground for the ISIL to enter the country. It was assumed that they are the ISIL group’s leader and successor, which was followed by a strong disagreement that, as much as anything, defined the last conflict. The hope in the Trump administration is that the US will help to contain the ISIL fighters which are widely known and condemned as a criminal organization.