Water & Energy Minister Faces Impalement on Monday

KABUL - The Water and Energy Minister Ali Ahmadi appeared before the next Monday session for the impeachment motion. The reason behind Lomas’ impeachment is cited appointing of 32 advisors, spending development budget less than 10 percent and illegal contracting for the construction of Nangal-Toju dam with Pashan and Almar companies.

However, some lawmakers opposed the move during Wednesday’s session. Gallam Hassan Naseri from Helmand province, said Usmani had considerable achievements and he should not be victimized for personal interest. He asked lawmakers to leave their interests behind and let a capable man continue the work.

Lashkar Gah, without going into details, said “A number of lawmakers are committed to dismantling the efficient minister.”

Kermalzab Zada, a lawmaker from western Ghor province, removed Usmani had considerable achievements and he should not be victimized for personal interest. He asked lawmakers to leave their interests behind and let a capable man continue the work.

KABUL - A delay in the appoint- ment of new Independent Elec- tion Commission (IEC) members and uncertainty about fate of its secretary may set back Wolesi Jirga and district council polls. In a statement, the election panel expressed its concern over the delay and demanded the govern- ment introduce one more member of the commission as soon as possible.

“We want the election bodies to help accelerate the process of selecting the new member so that the commission could get its preparations for the elections without further delay,” the state- ment added.

On November 15, President

Aslam Ghani removed the IEC chairman in line with the recom- mendation of his colleagues. On the other hand, the commis- sion raised its concern over the uncertain future of the IEC sec- retary, saying the presidential order had virtually removed the official during a meeting on October 21.
