The Three Steps Solutions to Stop From the Current Juncture of History

By: Mohamad Zahir Akbari

The historic experience has clearly showed that neither least nor worst tricks can take part in making the current situation of Afghanistan. The record of 40 countries with current passive approach had not changed the situation of Afghanistan since 2001. Nor will it change the future as well. Now, 91% of our people are suffering from poverty and food crisis while we had no financial crisis in Afghanistan. Pakistan is one of the countries hit hard by insecurity and violence. Afghanistan should allow and will not allow any country to use its soil for military purposes. On the other hand, Islamabad has any legitimate concerns ensuring that Afghanistan is not a haven for terrorists. Historic issues between Pakistan and Afghanistan should be changed to a friendly relationship and will not a headache for Pakistan. The recent assassination of시나리오에서 15 Afghan journalists have been killed. This is the deadliest year for journalists. As a result, Afghan journalists have been killed, making this one of the deadliest years for the country's rapidly growing media sector. The current situation has been described as an emergency and the United Nations must take concrete measures to protect journalists and journalists' safety. At the same time, journalists and media can also play a role in promoting the demarcation of Afghan society. Journalists Under Threat in Afghanistan

By: Sajjad Aasim

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Most Kind

The ills of history have one common root in Afghanistan between false strategic choices or choices. As if one again Nasir Ahki Khan has to mournfully decide between support of Tsarist Russia and invasion of the British Empire. As though once again, Dr. Najibullah has to decide between withdrawal of Soviet Red Army and compromis- ing with the Mujahideen and their regional and international support- ers. Similarly, now the countries are between dilemmas of endless war or chaos and great compromise of peace with the insurgents groups. Given the repeated mistakes which also repeated the history, we now have to make a very easy decision for the journalist; therefore, they mostly avoid going to those areas. Some that are able to make there all are going to those areas to make sure what will happen and be the first to see and even sacrifice their lives for the sake of their duties. Unfortunately, such a decision to the lives of journalists are not limited to the insecure parts of the country anymore. A Washington Post report revealed on Sunday (Dec. 20) that "since the fall of the Taliban government, 15 Afghan journalists have been killed, making this one of the deadliest years for the country's rapidly growing media sector since the end of Taliban rule in 2001."

Tolerance Will Create Room for Peace

Lack of religious tolerance will precipitate violence in a society. A large number of Afghan ethnic and religious minorities lost their life on the grounds of their caste and creed under the Taliban. The Taliban's dogmatic mindset and lack of tolerance led to numerous violence across the country and Afghans still lost their lives in the wake of terrorist attacks.

Four days after sealing a free trade agreement with the European Union, the British government warned businesses to get ready for disruptions and ‘troubling moments’ when new rules come into effect on Thursday.

Businesses were scrambling Monday to digest the details and implications of the 1,240-page deal brokered by the EU and the UK on Christmas Eve. EU ambassadors, meanwhile, gave their unanimous approval Monday to the Brexit trade deal with the EU, which holds the eurozone’s power, in the Brexit process, said the decision came during a meeting to assess the Christmas Eve agreement.

“Green light,” said Germany’s Health Ministry said that its organization was in talks to purchase 1 million doses of the vaccine from China. The head of Iran’s Red Crescent last week said his country had received approval from U.S. authorities to buy coronavirus vaccines from the World Health Organization.

Targeted Killings May Force Us to Flee Country: Journalists

KABUL - Afghanistan’s Independent Human Rights Commission (AIHRC) said on Monday the recent attacks against journalists and the media has led to weakening of trust among our young generations.

The journalists said after being threatened, they had to refer to government security agencies, but their concerns and demands were given no enough attention. The media community was worried about more restrictions that could affect their work and their lives, the statement said.

It said the government has not shared sufficient information about preventing targeted killings of journalists and preventing the perpetrators.

In the meeting, journalists said they might be forced to flee the country if the government failed to ensure their safety.

In addition, the escalation of targeted attacks against journalists and the media has led to weakening of trust among our young generations, which can have serious negative effects on their reporting, especially investigative reporting in provinces.

In government and undermining stability.
