Govt. Controls Less Than 60 Percent of Country

KABUL - Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission (AIHRC) on Tuesday said that there are serious concerns about the lives of between 300,000 and 500,000 Afghan children employed as laborers on the streets. The AIHRC stated that the issue of child labor affects hundreds of thousands of children who are deprived of a formal education.

“We have suggested the Afghan government increase the social security for supporting children,” CEO of the AIHRC Masoumeh Aghazadeh said. Survey Finds Illegal Mining a Revenue Source for Insurgents, Mafia

KABUL - A recent survey by Afghanistan Anti-Corruption Network (AACN) has found that the country’s mines have become a revenue source for terrorist groups, mafia syndicates and powerful figures in the country.

The report states these groups receive an estimated $46 million USD from illegal mining just from the largest mines, particularly in Achin district in Nangarhar province. According to the report, Daesh militants have also accessed a number of mines in Achin district in Nangarhar province.

The report also shows that at least 45 tons of marble is being smuggled every day out of the country, while in the past, Daesh officials have moved more than 300 people and 48 vehicles daily from one of the smuggling points to neighboring countries. "From P4..." (More on P4)...(2)
