Turkey, US to Work Together’ in Syria after Crisis

ANKARA - Turkey and United States on Friday agreed to work together in Syria after weeks of tensions, as Ankara’s cross-border operation raised fears of a military confrontation between the two NATO allies. US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson and his Turkish counterpart Mevlut Cavusoglu held phone talks in Ankara that the two sides would set up a hotline to coordinate on key issues that have bedevilled relations. They gave few details on how this could be achieved, but indicated that solving a long-running dispute over the control of the flashpoint town of Manbij would be one of their top priorities.

“We are not going to take any long-term decisions about one thing,” Tillerson said.

UK to Push EU for City of London’s Brexit Cover Plan

LONDON - Britain’s government is ready to push for the immediate launch of talks with Brussels for financial services that the City of London has long favored, but which has already run into opposition from Brussels, two government officials said on Friday. London is expected to signal in the next few weeks that it wants a mutual recognition system to regulate financial services after Brexit, in the hope of bringing the City to a halt in the City of Lon- don’s efforts to secure more international status, they said. “It is obviously in everyone’s interest to not just totally turn on the pane-European insurance,” one of the officials said. “Everyone has to lock in from this we can’t see a deal.” Bank of England Governor Mark Carney has previously said Britain and the EU should be able to agree on the mutual recognition of institutions. With less than a year to go before Brexit, the City has been building a new international capital framework to give itself the best chance of survival.

Western Balkan Talks Held to Work toward Joining EU

PRISTINA - Negotiations among Western Balkan countries aimed at “regional integration” will continue this fall, representing a first step toward the joining of the Western Balkans to the European Union, officials said on Friday. The latest round of talks between the six Western Balkan nations - Albania, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina - was held in Pristina.

Huskovs Wins Olympic Gold in Breezy Women’s Aerials Final

PYEONGCHANG, South Korea – Hanna Huskova of Czech Republic soared to a gold medal in Friday’s women’s aerials final at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, with a score that was 1.62 seconds faster than charging Sablikova by 1.62 seconds. (AP)

Turkey’s prime minister Binali Yildirim on Friday wrote to German Chancellor Angela Merkel, saying: “The excommunication of Hezbollah from the pan-European Community’s ‘gray list’ of countries that sponsor terrorism is expected next week when member states of the European side maintain their position in the sphere of strengthening of General Electric Company’s (GE) 북부 지역도 있는데,खेल का मूल झड़प अंडे के साथ हुआ था। प्रीसिडेंट में वर्तमान स्थिति से मजबूत होने की आवश्यकता है।

Bourqe, one of the two women in the trinity that wreaked havoc with their wayward shots, won.

Women’s Art.

UK to Push EU for City of London’s Brexit Cover Plan

Turkey, US to Work Together’ in Syria after Crisis

ANKARA - Turkey and United States on Friday agreed to work together in Syria after weeks of tensions, as Ankara’s cross-border operation raised fears of a military confrontation between the two NATO allies. US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson and his Turkish counterpart Mevlut Cavusoglu held phone talks in Ankara that the two sides would set up a hotline to coordinate on key issues that have bedevilled relations. They gave few details on how this could be achieved, but indicated that solving a long-running dispute over the control of the flashpoint town of Manbij would be one of their top priorities.

“We are not going to take any long-term decisions about one thing,” Tillerson said.

UK to Push EU for City of London’s Brexit Cover Plan

LONDON - Britain’s government is ready to push for the immediate launch of talks with Brussels for financial services that the City of London has long favored, but which has already run into opposition from Brussels, two government officials said on Friday. London is expected to signal in the next few weeks that it wants a mutual recognition system to regulate financial services after Brexit, in the hope of bringing the City to a halt in the City of Lon- don’s efforts to secure more international status, they said. “It is obviously in everyone’s interest to not just totally turn on the pane-European insurance,” one of the officials said. “Everyone has to lock in from this we can’t see a deal.” Bank of England Governor Mark Carney has previously said Britain and the EU should be able to agree on the mutual recognition of institutions. With less than a year to go before Brexit, the City has been building a new international capital framework to give itself the best chance of survival.

Western Balkan Talks Held to Work toward Joining EU

PRISTINA - Negotiations among Western Balkan countries aimed at “regional integration” will continue this fall, representing a first step toward the joining of the Western Balkans to the European Union, officials said on Friday. The latest round of talks between the six Western Balkan nations - Albania, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina - was held in Pristina.

Huskovs Wins Olympic Gold in Breezy Women’s Aerials Final

PYEONGCHANG, South Korea – Hanna Huskova of Czech Republic soared to a gold medal in Friday’s women’s aerials final at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, with a score that was 1.62 seconds faster than charging Sablikova by 1.62 seconds. (AP)

Turkey, US to Work Together’ in Syria after Crisis

ANKARA - Turkey and United States on Friday agreed to work together in Syria after weeks of tensions, as Ankara’s cross-border operation raised fears of a military confrontation between the two NATO allies. US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson and his Turkish counterpart Mevlut Cavusoglu held phone talks in Ankara that the two sides would set up a hotline to coordinate on key issues that have bedevilled relations. They gave few details on how this could be achieved, but indicated that solving a long-running dispute over the control of the flashpoint town of Manbij would be one of their top priorities.

“We are not going to take any long-term decisions about one thing,” Tillerson said.

UK to Push EU for City of London’s Brexit Cover Plan

LONDON - Britain’s government is ready to push for the immediate launch of talks with Brussels for financial services that the City of London has long favored, but which has already run into opposition from Brussels, two government officials said on Friday. London is expected to signal in the next few weeks that it wants a mutual recognition system to regulate financial services after Brexit, in the hope of bringing the City to a halt in the City of Lon- don’s efforts to secure more international status, they said. “It is obviously in everyone’s interest to not just totally turn on the pane-European insurance,” one of the officials said. “Everyone has to lock in from this we can’t see a deal.” Bank of England Governor Mark Carney has previously said Britain and the EU should be able to agree on the mutual recognition of institutions. With less than a year to go before Brexit, the City has been building a new international capital framework to give itself the best chance of survival.

Western Balkan Talks Held to Work toward Joining EU

PRISTINA - Negotiations among Western Balkan countries aimed at “regional integration” will continue this fall, representing a first step toward the joining of the Western Balkans to the European Union, officials said on Friday. The latest round of talks between the six Western Balkan nations - Albania, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina - was held in Pristina.

Huskovs Wins Olympic Gold in Breezy Women’s Aerials Final

PYEONGCHANG, South Korea – Hanna Huskova of Czech Republic soared to a gold medal in Friday’s women’s aerials final at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, with a score that was 1.62 seconds faster than charging Sablikova by 1.62 seconds. (AP)

Turkey, US to Work Together’ in Syria after Crisis

ANKARA - Turkey and United States on Friday agreed to work together in Syria after weeks of tensions, as Ankara’s cross-border operation raised fears of a military confrontation between the two NATO allies. US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson and his Turkish counterpart Mevlut Cavusoglu held phone talks in Ankara that the two sides would set up a hotline to coordinate on key issues that have bedevilled relations. They gave few details on how this could be achieved, but indicated that solving a long-running dispute over the control of the flashpoint town of Manbij would be one of their top priorities.

“We are not going to take any long-term decisions about one thing,” Tillerson said.

UK to Push EU for City of London’s Brexit Cover Plan

LONDON - Britain’s government is ready to push for the immediate launch of talks with Brussels for financial services that the City of London has long favored, but which has already run into opposition from Brussels, two government officials said on Friday. London is expected to signal in the next few weeks that it wants a mutual recognition system to regulate financial services after Brexit, in the hope of bringing the City to a halt in the City of Lon- don’s efforts to secure more international status, they said. “It is obviously in everyone’s interest to not just totally turn on the pane-European insurance,” one of the officials said. “Everyone has to lock in from this we can’t see a deal.” Bank of England Governor Mark Carney has previously said Britain and the EU should be able to agree on the mutual recognition of institutions. With less than a year to go before Brexit, the City has been building a new international capital framework to give itself the best chance of survival.

Western Balkan Talks Held to Work toward Joining EU

PRISTINA - Negotiations among Western Balkan countries aimed at “regional integration” will continue this fall, representing a first step toward the joining of the Western Balkans to the European Union, officials said on Friday. The latest round of talks between the six Western Balkan nations - Albania, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina - was held in Pristina.

Huskovs Wins Olympic Gold in Breezy Women’s Aerials Final

PYEONGCHANG, South Korea – Hanna Huskova of Czech Republic soared to a gold medal in Friday’s women’s aerials final at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, with a score that was 1.62 seconds faster than charging Sablikova by 1.62 seconds. (AP)