Overcoming a common challenge for both countries, calling the joint commission a "model" of cooperation, Gen. Raheel Sharif, Pakistan's army chief, said Tuesday that Pakistan welcomed improvements in Pakistan's relations with Afghanistan.

"We must use these opportunities to build trust and get rid of terrorism for our wars and for the sake of our peoples," Sharif said, adding Pakistan's army would help Afghanistan.

On the other hand, Afghan political and military experts urge the Afghan government in order to stop India and China from influencing the political situation in Afghanistan to stop Indian and Chinese military involvement in Afghanistan.

(3) UN Focuses

The UN Security Council on Tuesday called for a "substantial" increase in the volume of goods Kabul imports from Pakistan, saying that the Pakistan's larger neighbor is the most important economic partner in the region.

The statement came after an emergency meeting called by the British ambassador to the UN about the recent border dispute between Afghanistan and Pakistan.
