Serious Concerns in Afghanistan

The opinions of the people and intellectuals towards the socio-political scenarios in Afghanistan appear to be divergent and there are not clear certainties in this regard. There are many doubts and the opinions regarding the situation are very shaky. It is not just about the situation in Afghanistan, but the reaction by the Afghan authorities as a response to the situation is also divergent.

Especially, in the last nine months the situation seems ambiguous as to where the country is heading and what would be the future of socio-political scenarios in the region. The new president of Taliban has been seen as an individual who is striving towards the wellbeing of all the people of Afghanistan. The immense effort made on the part of government and other authorities in Afghanistan has been trying to keep the central government stronger. Even the key elected members, is not given its due authority.

Further, the so called democratic system in our country has not been developed and has been seen as the top of bureaucratic hierarchy. The process has been very weak and institutions serve the authoritative interest during their era. Martin Luther condemned anyone who used interest to enrich himself, saying, “Why should interest be paid? According to him, the theory of interest rate theory, Knut Wicksell in his book "Interest and Prices" reaffirmed the statement of Aristotle that money produces through interest. (Gottfried Feder)

As far as the security of the country is concerned, there have been many improvements but a lot of work still needs to be done. The information and communication technology have enabled the authorities to reach the people in the remotest areas.

Although there have been improvements, the security situation of the country is still not in a stable mode. There are instances of rockets, booby-traps and roadside bombs not very far from the capital city.

President Trump while acknowledging the Russian cyber hacking of the Democratic National Committee (DNC) in 2016, has alleged the presence of evidence by the FBI and U.S. cyber command officials, nevertheless, he has repeatedly stated that the hacking had no impact on the elections outcome and he won the elections fairly and square. The allegations have also been dismissed by the Russian authorities.

As far as the security of the country is concerned, there have been many improvements but a lot of work still needs to be done. The information and communication technology have enabled the authorities to reach the people in the remotest areas. Martin Luther condemned anyone who used interest to enrich himself, saying, “Why should interest be paid?” According to him, the theory of interest rate theory, Knut Wicksell in his book "Interest and Prices" reaffirmed the statement of Aristotle that money produces income through interest. (Gottfried Feder)