The five defendants and the victim were unaccompanied minors who had applied for asylum in Sweden. The court sentenced four of the defendants to 15 months in prison and ordered the fifth to 13 months.

The court heard that the teenagers forced the victim, who was 15 at the time of the attack, into a car and drove for several hours. They raped the individual and forced him to perform a sexual act.

The victim was taken to hospital and later died from his injuries.

The court also ruled that the teenagers should be placed in a youth care facility until they are 18.

The victim's mother, who spoke to the media after the verdict, said her son's death had been a tragedy.

She said, "We want justice for our son. We want the people responsible for his death to be punished."
