The Significance of Teachers’ Role

Teachers in a society can rightly be considered as the builders of a nation because of the important role that they play. They disseminate knowledge and support the students in building their characters, personalities and minds. They guide the students through a very important phase of their lives, which can decide their whole future. Whether they become good habits and positive members of the society or they remain illiterate and have negative impact over the society largely depends on the way they are educated by their teachers.

Teachers have the responsibility of not only stuffing the curriculums in the minds of the students but supporting them in having better mentality. They have the responsibility of making the students think wisely and stand on their own, instead of making them rely on the words taught to them by others. Students must learn the ways to change their lives and the lives of their fellow beings from their teachers, not only the mathematical formulae in the grammatical rules. Teachers must teach the students what paths to follow, instead of making them follow the path they themselves are following.

Unfortunately, that is not what we always see from the teachers. The teachers in our society do not always seem to be the ideal teachers. They lack the skills and the talents that are required by a teacher. They, on certain occasions, even lead the students astray and on many other occasions make them follow blindly. They want their students to be obedient and dumb and do not like them questioning much. They consider the agony, motivated and enthusiastic students as all-disciplined and worthy to stand outside their classes most of the time. They, in some cases, even beat the students and insult them verbally. They do not treat the students the way they should be treated.

At the same time, there are observations that show that our society does not treat the teachers the way they should be treated. The teaching profession is not given the worth it deserves. Teachers are not paid properly for their tireless job. They cannot feed themselves and their families properly with what they earn through teaching. The training opportunities are very much limited for them. Moreover, commitments alone would not be enough in this regard, it is imperative that other facilities for the teachers are taken in this regard. The government has to provide them with a significant amount of money so that they can live with dignity. It is very important that society and the country can truly play their role in the lives of the students.

Afghanistan is one of the countries that have been suffering from insecurity and economic instability. The teachers have to work extremely hard in such a situation to make the students understand the importance of knowledge.

The new government has to play a very imperative role regarding heightening the position of teachers and their education in our society.

One has a policy of legislated behavior as both a tax cut and a reform been received with as much dis- approval and derision as the bill proposal by the US. Congress and signed into law by President Donald Trump on the last day of the Christmas. The Republicans who voted for tax bill proposal (no Democrats did) claim that their bill will become to be ap- preciated, later, as Americans see their take-home pay go up. They are already raising very strongly. Rather than to pack this tax bill proposal into one package all that is with the Republican Party, and to see if it will pass, the allowed state of America’s democracy: to discuss the bill without conditions. The legislation is not “tax reform” by even the most realistic concept. It means to avoid distorting investment and increasing the fairness of the tax code. Central to fairness is the idea that those who are using the tax legislation reduce taxes by a ton of dollars of average, on average, for most of these able to pay (the top-gamblers). And, when fully implemented in (2017), it will cause an increase in the income of the middle (the second, third, and fourth quintiles).

The US tax code was already regressive long before Trump’s presidency. Indeed, the billionaire investor Warren Buf- fett, who is one of the most prominent men in the country, com- plained that it was wrong that he paid a lower tax rate than the average person who worked for Walmart. The Republicans seem to think that voters will not see beyond the next paycheck. But voters are likely to see through the rhetoric, and understand that the tax reform is indeed for the super-rich--again, not a sound strategy for increasing American prosperity.

The legislation is not “tax reform” but is a key economic problem in the United States, with those at the top getting a bigger share of the economic pie. But the Republican Party is cynical. Its leaders are stuffing the tax code with provisions that will benefit the wealthy. And, by lowering the corporate tax rate, the US government will further undermine US manufacturing. Once again, the US government is more interested in the interests of the rich than the health of the economy.
