Economic policies play a vital role to develop and progress of any country, and it is essential to think about order and stability in other fields of life. It can be seen that the country's economic situation is not independent of the environmental aspects in various countries, the most important of which is politics. The international political arena is highly overlapped by power dynamics. Just consider the level of the developed countries, like USA, UK, and China in contemporary international politics. Politicians, statesmen, economists, and even ordinary people have a serious interest in a stable political system.

Currently, in the 21st century, especially after the collapse of the Soviet Union, a capitalist society, and in this regard, businesses can play a vital role. Businesses can make a political system that, on the exterior, is called as democratic but in reality, there is no true democracy. Prices within the markets, which at the present are non-existent and monopolies exist in various areas. The laws should not only safeguard the rights of the people but also control the business. The laws should not only safeguard the rights of the people but also control the business. The laws should not only safeguard the rights of the people but also control the business.

In Afghanistan, the political system is the permanent concern of the Afghan people since the time of the Taliban, because the Taliban, for meeting the real needs of terrorist groups and revealing their flagrant violation of humanitarian law to the public. Last year, Afghanistan has been repeatedly faced with the top of the international community's attention, especially journalist killed in work-related attacks. In the list, published by the International Federation of Journalists, Afghanistan was at the death of 16 journalists, Mexico followed with 11, Yemen with nine and Syria with eight. Unfortunately, high on the list, the US, which is a strong democratic government, Afghanistan has the lowest rank of 162. In this regard, we can see that the fact Afghanistan Advocates advocate freedom of speech, insurgents do not believe in freedom.

Nonetheless, Afghan journalists and media staff will not be deterred. They continue to try to continue their activities with strong determination but urge the government to ensure their security, while those who are independent from power completely ignore the situation, which is a shame. It is a shame in the case of a country that does not see positive changes in the political system.

In terms of formal education, Afghan people have a strong desire to invest in all the sectors and they do not see positive changes in the political system. And, the Isaf command does not seem to understand this. And, that is why we find them to be more attracted to a political system that is not democratic, but this is just a political system that is not democratic, but this is just a political system.

Social scientists narrating the positive and negative aspects of people's life is outstanding. Historians, political scientists, and economists do not have the same interest in the study of people's life. In the contemporary world, the society is dying and ruining. The key to the dynamism and transformation of a society and culture is based on the critical and challenging approaches as well as in the social and cultural issues of the society. This process should be accompanied by the breaking of the barriers and not by the breaking of the barriers. Just consider the level of the developed countries, like USA, UK, and China in contemporary international politics.

Cultural barriers are one of the main obstacles to the growth and spread of education in Afghanistan. A large part of these cultural norms is learned through the process of socialization that shapes our lives. In this regard, the Taliban's implementation of such a cultural and social judgment in education is such a cultural judgment in education that is imposed on all regions of the country. Therefore, I would argue that Afghan families instead of halting their girls' education need to play a more active role in their communities and families. The Afghan Ministry of Education and training of girls and women and provide equal opportunities for women and men are not provided in the social, economic, and political inequalities in their living communities. The Afghan Ministry of Education has the responsibility to eliminate discrimination and gender inequalities. Because when girls gain education, they have skills, and, the capability required for their future careers, they can fight with the political, economic, social, gender, and educational inequalities that remain in their communities.

The Afghan Ministry of Education as a responsible entity in providing education should pay close attention to the education and training of girls and women and provide special programs in this regard. These actions require that certain mechanisms should be created by the Ministry of Education and other relevant entities for fighting with the predominant rigid cultural norms that impede girls from gaining education. In addition to government responsible for education, teaching, and the establishment of new roles in the society, they should help their daughters obtain education so that they can play a constructive role in the society. They should help their daughters obtain education so that they can play a constructive role in the society. They should help their daughters obtain education so that they can play a constructive role in the society.

In Afghanistan, the political system is the permanent concern of the Afghan people since the time of the Taliban, because the Taliban, for meeting the real needs of terrorist groups and revealing their flagrant violation of humanitarian law to the public. Last year, Afghanistan has been repeatedly faced with the top of the international community's attention, especially journalist killed in work-related attacks. In the list, published by the International Federation of Journalists, Afghanistan was at the death of 16 journalists, Mexico followed with 11, Yemen with nine and Syria with eight. Unfortunately, high on the list, the US, which is a strong democratic government, Afghanistan has the lowest rank of 162. In this regard, we can see that the fact Afghanistan Advocates advocate freedom of speech, insurgents do not believe in freedom.

The Afghan Ministry of Education and training of girls and women and provide equal opportunities for women and men are not provided in the social, economic, and political inequalities in their living communities. The Afghan Ministry of Education has the responsibility to eliminate discrimination and gender inequalities. Because when girls gain education, they have skills, and, the capability required for their future careers, they can fight with the political, economic, social, gender, and educational inequalities that remain in their communities.

The Afghan Ministry of Education as a responsible entity in providing education should pay close attention to the education and training of girls and women and provide special programs in this regard. These actions require that certain mechanisms should be created by the Ministry of Education and other relevant entities for fighting with the predominant rigid cultural norms that impede girls from gaining education. In addition to government responsible for education, teaching, and the establishment of new roles in the society, they should help their daughters obtain education so that they can play a constructive role in the society. They should help their daughters obtain education so that they can play a constructive role in the society. They should help their daughters obtain education so that they can play a constructive role in the society.