US Unveils New Initiatives to Counter Violent Extremism

WASHINGTON - Facing increased threat of violent extremism at home, the United States on Friday announced new initiatives intended "to improve our global engagement center. The initiatives, announced by National Security Advisor Need Price and Secretary of State Antony Blinken, are designed to improve our international and domestic fight against terrorism. The US Department of Homeland Security and the State Department, among other organizations, will establish the Center of Excellence for Countering Violent Extremism which will "allow us to place an international focus on empowering and enabling the voices of international and national government," said Price.

\[Image 68x384 to 249x505\]

WASHINGTON - Facing increased threat of violent extremism at home, the United States on Friday announced new initiatives intended "to improve our global engagement center. The initiatives, announced by Need Price, spokesman of the National Security Advisor, and the Secretary of State, Antony Blinken, are designed to improve our international and domestic efforts against terrorism. The US Department of Homeland Security and the State Department, among other organizations, will establish the Center of Excellence for Countering Violent Extremism which will "allow us to place an international focus on empowering and enabling the voices of international and national government," said Price.

\[Image 68x384 to 249x505\]

WASHINGTON - Facing increased threat of violent extremism at home, the United States on Friday announced new initiatives intended "to improve our global engagement center. The initiatives, announced by Need Price, spokesman of the National Security Advisor, and the Secretary of State, Antony Blinken, are designed to improve our international and domestic efforts against terrorism. The US Department of Homeland Security and the State Department, among other organizations, will establish the Center of Excellence for Countering Violent Extremism which will "allow us to place an international focus on empowering and enabling the voices of international and national government," said Price.

\[Image 68x384 to 249x505\]