More than 100 Militants Killed in Logar Raids

PUL-I-ALAM - More than 100 Taliban rebels have been killed and 20 more wounded during the past two months. The operation wrapped up Monday night in the provincial capital, an official said on Tuesday. Salim Saleh, the gouvernor’s spokesman, said the Afghan National Army (ANA) and police forces carried out an operation on Monday night.

The operation resulted in the death of 10 Taliban fighters and the destruction of four suicide bombs. Taliban fighters were also killed and 10 others wounded, but it remained unclear what caused the casualties to the civilians, Saleh said. He added that three districts and some machineries were seized and some precision strikes were carried out.

A member of the provincial council, Hassan Ali Omer, said the operation had positive results as the government troops were able to seize and kill all 10 and others wounded, but it remained unclear what caused the casualties to the civilians, Saleh said. He added that three districts and some machineries were seized and some precision strikes were carried out.
