Bill for Regulation of Weddings

On Wednesday last week, the lower house of Parliament or Wolesi Jirga passed a bill in order to regulate the worsening situation of marriages in the country. The bill was introduced in the house almost four months ago and it has now been passed to the upper house. The bill aims to bring an end to a number of practices on the name of tradition and also aims to bringing an end to a number of practices on the name of tradition.

The bill recommends for all the ladies to wear proper dresses in the weddings. Some of the important points of the bill are as follows:

- The bill has been introduced to the house almost four months ago and it has now been passed to the upper house.
- The bill aims to bring an end to a number of practices on the name of tradition.
- The bill recommends for all the ladies to wear proper dresses in the weddings.

One should be selective about which videos and movies a child is permitted to watch. Children who watch violent videos may become more aggressive and emotionally explosive than those who watch non-violent videos. Children who watch non-violent videos don’t think that people have to physically fight to get what they want. It is important that children learn that it is possible to find peaceful solutions to conflicts, to talk to each other, and to resolve problems through cooperation and empathy.

The bill also aims to promote good moral values among the children. It is important that the children learn about the values of hard work, honesty, and respect. The bill recommends that all hotel owners should not charge the customers too high prices and that there should be an end to a number of practices on the name of tradition.

The bill further recommends that there should be an end to the increasing lust in the society. There were also complaints about the high prices of wedding halls and saloons and poor quality of food and services. In the same way, increasing trend of fir handings and other social evils has been raised.

Finally, the bill recommends that there should be an end to the increasing crime and other illegal activities in the society. There were also complaints about the increasing Non-Islamic practices in the society. In the same way, the bill ensures that hotel owners should not charge the customers too high prices and that there should be an end to a number of practices on the name of tradition.
