Karzai’s were the first public efforts to establish a peace process, with the Taliban groups in a peace process. The delegations were led by Afghan Foreign Minister Hekmat Khalil Karzai, Pakistan’s Special Envoy for Afghanistan and Iran, Aizaz Ahmad Chaudhry, the Afghan chief negotiator, Mohammad Fatemullah Amrullah, and the Taliban leader, Mullah Abdul Ghani Baradar.

In Kabul, the Afghan delegation said they may consider joining the Afghan government in the peace process, but not in a way that affects their territorial sovereignty. Karzai’s were the first public efforts to establish a peace process with the Taliban groups in a peace process.