High-Level Kabul Delegation Begins Probe in Aich Airstrike

JALALABAD - A high-level delegation from Kabul has arrived in eastern Nangarhar province to investigate a deadly US airstrike on an Afghan militia force in the Achin district, an official said Saturday.

The delegation was called in after an ALP member opened fire at US forces during a security meeting on Thursday, reports said. US forces said a soldier was injured in the incident.

After what appeared to an insider’s attack, the US forces launched a US P4 attack and killed 13 ALP members, according to local security officials.

Governor’s spokesman, Attaullah Ghoryani, told Pajhwok Afghan News the Ministry of Defence delegation from Kabul was headed by Brig. Gen. Afghanistan. He said the delegation included officials from the Interior Ministry, the National Directorate of Security and the National Directorate of Local Governance and other organs.

The delegation met today with government officials and shared partial information about the incident. "We have submitted a formal report to the Interior Ministry and the National Directorate of Security," he said.
