KABUL — Afghanistan has strategically drawn the United States and the new Government of Pakistan, a senior official has said in a recent interview. The official, who claims to speak for the Afghan Government, said in a press release on Thursday, "We have moved truckloads of supplies to Afghanistan in the past 20 years."

The Taliban has been responsible for the attacks that have killed around 5,000 people in Afghanistan since 2001. However, the Taliban has denied responsibility, instead accusing "innocent" Afghan civilians of carrying out the attacks.

The Taliban refused to share power with the Afghan government officials who had previously had good relations with the insurgents. A number of former Taliban members lived in Pakistan, and when the Taliban movement began to wane, some of them also moved to Pakistan. In 2013, other members are believed to be living as private citizens in the United Arab Emirates. A senior Taliban member based in the UAE had been planning to send a delegation to mourn the slain diplomat and explain that it was not behind the attack.

"We have had contact with Pakistan, and we have never wanted to target them," the official said. "We have met a number of diplomats and foreign missions in Afghanistan and arranged some occasions we could have offered diplomatic missions in Islamic countries but we didn't as it was not in our agreements," the official said (Reuters).

Turkmenistan Eyes to Export Electricity via Afghanistan

TALIBAN SEeks to Reassure UAE over Afghanistan Attack

KABUL — The Afghan Taliban has been responsible for the attack in the southern city of Kandahar that killed five UAE citizens and injured the ambassador, the UAE officials said on Thursday.

More than a dozen Afghan truckers were killed last week by a bomb attack in the Kandahar governor's residence in an attack in which Afghan authorities have blamed on the Taliban and Pakistan intelligence services.

However, the Taliban has denied responsibility, instead accusing "innocent" Afghan civilians of carrying out the attack. The insurgents have frequently targeted the UAE since 2001.

Although the insurgents had demanded the extradition of a leader of the Afghan Insurgency in Afghanistan for involvement in the attack, the Taliban denied hosting the attacker. A number of former Taliban members lived in Pakistan, and when the Taliban movement began to wane, some of them also moved to Pakistan. In 2013, other members are believed to be living as private citizens in the United Arab Emirates.

"We have had contact with Pakistan, and we have never wanted to target them," the official said. "We have met a number of diplomats and foreign missions in Afghanistan and arranged some occasions we could have offered diplomatic missions in Islamic countries but we didn't as it was not in our agreements," the official said (Reuters).

Spex Spy Services can Help Remove Af-Pak Mistrust: Gen. Rahmat

KABUL — Afghan-US ties need to be further improved under the new administration, a senior official has said in a recent interview. The official, who claims to speak for the Afghan Government, said in a press release on Thursday, "We have moved truckloads of supplies to Afghanistan in the past 20 years."

The Taliban has been responsible for the attacks that have killed around 5,000 people in Afghanistan since 2001. However, the Taliban has denied responsibility, instead accusing "innocent" Afghan civilians of carrying out the attacks.

The Taliban refused to share power with the Afghan government officials who had previously had good relations with the insurgents. A number of former Taliban members lived in Pakistan, and when the Taliban movement began to wane, some of them also moved to Pakistan. In 2013, other members are believed to be living as private citizens in the United Arab Emirates. A senior Taliban member based in the UAE had been planning to send a delegation to mourn the slain diplomat and explain that it was not behind the attack.

"We have had contact with Pakistan, and we have never wanted to target them," the official said. "We have met a number of diplomats and foreign missions in Afghanistan and arranged some occasions we could have offered diplomatic missions in Islamic countries but we didn't as it was not in our agreements," the official said (Reuters).

Turkmenistan Eyes to Export Electricity via Afghanistan

TALIBAN SEeks to Reassure UAE over Afghanistan Attack

KABUL — The Afghan Taliban has been responsible for the attack in the southern city of Kandahar that killed five UAE citizens and injured the ambassador, the UAE officials said on Thursday.

More than a dozen Afghan truckers were killed last week by a bomb attack in the Kandahar governor's residence in an attack in which Afghan authorities have blamed on the Taliban and Pakistan intelligence services.

However, the Taliban has denied responsibility, instead accusing "innocent" Afghan civilians of carrying out the attack. The insurgents have frequently targeted the UAE since 2001.

Although the insurgents had demanded the extradition of a leader of the Afghan Insurgency in Afghanistan for involvement in the attack, the Taliban denied hosting the attacker. A number of former Taliban members lived in Pakistan, and when the Taliban movement began to wane, some of them also moved to Pakistan. In 2013, other members are believed to be living as private citizens in the United Arab Emirates. A senior Taliban member based in the UAE had been planning to send a delegation to mourn the slain diplomat and explain that it was not behind the attack.

"We have had contact with Pakistan, and we have never wanted to target them," the official said. "We have met a number of diplomats and foreign missions in Afghanistan and arranged some occasions we could have offered diplomatic missions in Islamic countries but we didn't as it was not in our agreements," the official said (Reuters).

Spex Spy Services can Help Remove Af-Pak Mistrust: Gen. Rahmat

KABUL — Afghan-US ties need to be further improved under the new administration, a senior official has said in a recent interview. The official, who claims to speak for the Afghan Government, said in a press release on Thursday, "We have moved truckloads of supplies to Afghanistan in the past 20 years."

The Taliban has been responsible for the attacks that have killed around 5,000 people in Afghanistan since 2001. However, the Taliban has denied responsibility, instead accusing "innocent" Afghan civilians of carrying out the attacks.

The Taliban refused to share power with the Afghan government officials who had previously had good relations with the insurgents. A number of former Taliban members lived in Pakistan, and when the Taliban movement began to wane, some of them also moved to Pakistan. In 2013, other members are believed to be living as private citizens in the United Arab Emirates. A senior Taliban member based in the UAE had been planning to send a delegation to mourn the slain diplomat and explain that it was not behind the attack.

"We have had contact with Pakistan, and we have never wanted to target them," the official said. "We have met a number of diplomats and foreign missions in Afghanistan and arranged some occasions we could have offered diplomatic missions in Islamic countries but we didn't as it was not in our agreements," the official said (Reuters).

Spex Spy Services can Help Remove Af-Pak Mistrust: Gen. Rahmat

KABUL — Afghan-US ties need to be further improved under the new administration, a senior official has said in a recent interview. The official, who claims to speak for the Afghan Government, said in a press release on Thursday, "We have moved truckloads of supplies to Afghanistan in the past 20 years."

The Taliban has been responsible for the attacks that have killed around 5,000 people in Afghanistan since 2001. However, the Taliban has denied responsibility, instead accusing "innocent" Afghan civilians of carrying out the attacks.

The Taliban refused to share power with the Afghan government officials who had previously had good relations with the insurgents. A number of former Taliban members lived in Pakistan, and when the Taliban movement began to wane, some of them also moved to Pakistan. In 2013, other members are believed to be living as private citizens in the United Arab Emirates. A senior Taliban member based in the UAE had been planning to send a delegation to mourn the slain diplomat and explain that it was not behind the attack.

"We have had contact with Pakistan, and we have never wanted to target them," the official said. "We have met a number of diplomats and foreign missions in Afghanistan and arranged some occasions we could have offered diplomatic missions in Islamic countries but we didn't as it was not in our agreements," the official said (Reuters).