Formulating Development Policies Responsive to the Needs of all groups

By Sakhi Rezaie

Responsiveness and accountability is focused on the centrality of the social contract between the people and government. It is that State is obliged to respond- ingly democratization of society leads to prosperous Afghanistan. There is no economic security; food is scarce, poverty appall. On the contrary, lack of discipline and constructive approach inevitably leads to a sense of responsibility and a desire to give topmost priority to public interest. The spirit of rivalry and animosity pollutes the social life the country. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It ventilates public opinion and enables the government to be treated on the principle of humanity; be immune to the centrality of the social contract between the people and government. It is that State is obliged to respond-

Democratization of Our Society

January 21, 2018

I t is easier to dream for democracy and cherish its idea but difficult to achieve and maintain the true principles of the road to democracy is filled with difficulties and hardships and requires a strong will and determination. It tests the temperament of the leaders and the patience of the nation as a whole. Moreover, there are certain requirements that must be achieved before the journey to wards a stable political system can be started. One of the requirements of a strong constitution. Constitution implies a rule of law rather than of men. Every citizen is granted equal rights to pursue happiness, liberty and individually, embraced in the constitution, must be ap plied with letter and spirit, seeing as it curbs despite tendencies of the rulers and safeguards the rights of the people. It ensure that there is no arbitrariness in governing people and members belonging to different groups are given an equal treatment. No two human beings can ever think alike, it is natural to come across dissentions of opinions in any field. The democracy is the main cause of dissenting views. diverging views are the basis of the social contract and promote a participatory process. This is also important that all kinds of ideas are given an equal opportunity to express their views. People may come to the conclusion that democracy is purely a Western system. However, it is evident that the concept of democracy is the same concept, wherever it is expressed.

Widespread Violation of Human Rights

By Hujjatullah Zia

The human rights discourse seeks the protection and promotion of human rights and freedoms. This envisages respect for and protection of human rights and freedoms. In this regard, it is important to underscore the principle that government is accountable to the people. Government is not a patronizing institution, it is a servant of the people. It is the people who have the right to hold the government accountable for its actions. The government is not the protector of its interests, it is the protector of the people's interests. Therefore, the government is accountable to the people for its actions.

However, human rights abuses continue to be committed with impunity. The government has a responsibility to ensure that human rights violations are investigated and the culprits are held accountable for their actions.

The findings of the United Nations System Task Team show that, if governments are to make a real difference to the lives of people, they must grasp the opportunity to change the course of events through positive action. They must recognize that the drivers of change are not just economic and social, but also institutional and political. They must also recognize that the political challenges faced by governments are not just economic and political, they are also institutional and political. They must address these challenges by ensuring that public sector reforms are effective and that the public sector is responsive to the needs of the people.

The key to achieving this is to create an environment in which civil society can flourish. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It ventilates public opinion and enables the government to be responsive to the needs of the people.

The government is not a patronizing institution, it is a servant of the people. It is the people who have the right to hold the government accountable for its actions. The government is not the protector of its interests, it is the protector of the people's interests. Therefore, the government is accountable to the people for its actions.

The key to achieving this is to create an environment in which civil society can flourish. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It ventilates public opinion and enables the government to be responsive to the needs of the people.

The government is not a patronizing institution, it is a servant of the people. It is the people who have the right to hold the government accountable for its actions. The government is not the protector of its interests, it is the protector of the people's interests. Therefore, the government is accountable to the people for its actions.

The key to achieving this is to create an environment in which civil society can flourish. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It ventilates public opinion and enables the government to be responsive to the needs of the people.

The government is not a patronizing institution, it is a servant of the people. It is the people who have the right to hold the government accountable for its actions. The government is not the protector of its interests, it is the protector of the people's interests. Therefore, the government is accountable to the people for its actions.

The key to achieving this is to create an environment in which civil society can flourish. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It ventilates public opinion and enables the government to be responsive to the needs of the people.

The government is not a patronizing institution, it is a servant of the people. It is the people who have the right to hold the government accountable for its actions. The government is not the protector of its interests, it is the protector of the people's interests. Therefore, the government is accountable to the people for its actions.

The key to achieving this is to create an environment in which civil society can flourish. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It ventilates public opinion and enables the government to be responsive to the needs of the people.

The government is not a patronizing institution, it is a servant of the people. It is the people who have the right to hold the government accountable for its actions. The government is not the protector of its interests, it is the protector of the people's interests. Therefore, the government is accountable to the people for its actions.