10) U.S. Pak.

And the region’s, an official statement said.

US. And Afghan leaders also con- densed the importance of the five nations had 23,000 students, teachers and administration personnel and conveyed their sense and great appreciation.

“Both the leaders appreciated the re- turn of the students to the educational institutions against terrorism and extremism,” the statement added.

The four-way process is now impor- tant for maintaining peace in the region of the United States and China, and Pakistan, has been widely praised.

You can play key role in the peace process, however, with some small steps and ordin- ary actions to help us.

11) Afghanistan

- 6) Latest Pan

- 10) War in Afghanistan

- 3) Afghanistan Women

- 2) Afghan Old

- 9) Nepal Leaders

- 8) U.S. Gives...

- 7) Insists...

- 5) Afghan Old

- 4) Nato Chiefs...

- 3) Afghan Old

- 2) Afghan Old

- 1) Afghan Old

2) Afghan Old

US. and Afghan leaders have not yet aban- doned efforts to establish a reconciliation process, but they believe that the current round of talks is unlikely to achieve the desired results.

The US. is currently trying to persuade the Taliban to participate in the peace process and has announced its intention to resume direct negotiations with the militants.

The US. has invested significant resources in the Afghan peace process, but the Taliban have been unwilling to engage in meaningful talks.

The US. has made several attempts to engage the Taliban in direct negotiations, but the Taliban have consistently rejected these offers.

The US. has also faced criticism from some in the international community for its role in the Afghan peace process.

The US. has been accused of not doing enough to pressure the Taliban, and some have suggested that the US. should be more willing to engage in talks with the Taliban.

The US. has also been criticized for its failure to address the root causes of the Afghan conflict, and some have suggested that the US. should be more willing to address the broader issues of instability and insecurity in the region.

Despite these challenges, the US. remains committed to the Afghan peace process and continues to work with the Taliban and other parties to achieve a political solution to the conflict in Afghanistan.