Afghanistan – The Third Most Corrupt Country

IT is not only terrorism and instability that have been influencing Afgan society, endemic corruption is also one of the menaces that have been eating society's life tissues. As a result, a long line of devastation and fear is envisaged for the sake of the life of society.

An annual study of Transparency International has revealed that Afghanistan is ranked the third most corrupt country among 176 in the world. This is really tragic and shows that no considerable work has been done against corruption though it has been highlighted as a major problem throughout the last decade. And, it has had negative influence as well particularly in the top governmental institutions. Corruption not only destroys the detection but also hinders the development and growth of a country. In this case, we are not able to make the best use of our money. As a result, a large amount of our money is misused by corruption.

It has victimized our society more than terrorism and insecurity and today Afghanistan is considered one of the most corrupt countries in the world. Most of the financial support and the projects that were aimed to develop and progress were devoured by corruption and never reached to the needy people.

Our indifference towards this menace is really unfortunate and would cost us a great deal. Unfortunately, the present government and the relevant authorities do not have comprehensive strategy to deal with it and they fail to understand the urgency of dealing with it. They believe wrongly that they can deal with the issue of insecurity and terrorism without having to deal with the problem of corruption and in this case they are making a mistake to a large extent. They basically put the cart before the horse.

One of the major problems in tackling corruption in our country is that the controlling mechanism is itself involved in the problem. The government that should be following a policy to curb the menace of corruption is already involved in it. It is not only terrorism and instability that have been eating the society like termites. As, there has not been decisive action; the government has to face its own responsibility for the continuing corruption.

Corruption is a disease that haunts all the fields of the society. As, there has not been decisive action; the government has to face its own responsibility for the continuing corruption. As a result, the members of the society are not living a satisfactory life. As, a result, the members of the society are not living a satisfactory life. As, the society is not healthy and the health of the society is the responsibility of each and every person.

Therefore, each and every one of us must be a part of the anti-corruption movement. The members of society must come forward to participate in the anti-corruption campaign.

Equality does not mean that we are all the same. Each one of us is different in our own special way. But we also have the common qualities that make us all human beings. So each of us should be treated with respect and dignity and to be rewarded. One of the major problems in tackling with corruption in the country.

We have to nurture human characteristics to value one’s rights and dignity. Imagine the suffering of a human being who has no idea that why are they taking me for granted. Let us imagine the suffering of another human being, the suffering of those who are living in such a condition. On the other hand, let us imagine that you have given up the right of being a human being. That’s the feeling that you want to develop. Albert Einstein has stated, “A human being is a part of the whole, called by us, a universe, a part limited in time and space. He experiences himself, his thoughts and feelings as something separated from the rest, a kind of optical delusion of consciousness. This delusion is a kind of prison for us, restricting us to our own desires and to affection for a few persons – we are imprisoned by our own chains. Our task must be to free ourselves from this prison by expanding our circle of compassion to embrace all living creatures and the whole of nature in its beauty.”

H uman rights are commonly understood as inalienable and universal rights which a person is inherently entitled simply because he or she is a human being. Human rights include the right to freedom of speech and expression, freedom to believe or not to believe, the right to hold opinions and beliefs, to be free from unlawful imprisonment, torture, and execution. And, already much of the money has been misused by corruption. ripulation; however, the outcome is yet to be produced in this regard. The government that should be on the forefront to curb this menace, itself has been involved in it. One of the major problems in tackling with corruption in the country.

One of the most unfortunate facts is that corruption has not been dealt with by the government. One of the major problems in tackling with corruption in the country.
