1) Ceasefire Over
The government peace plan. The president linked the Afghan peace process to the interest of Pakistan, declaring that Pakistan had "promised to cooperate, it was an establishment." The war could be ended if Pakistan cooperated, he added. "Now the Taliban are confronting the situation in the region, the religious scholars of Pakistan, Mecca and Medina, the ulama of Afghanistan, and the ulama of Indonesia, and they are also facing pressures from these elements, which is a sign of the situation's normality and now it is the Taliban's turn to respond," President Ghani said. "Promising to cooperate, it was an establishment."

2) Taliban
He said Pakistani politicians made it clear that peace in Afghanistan was in the interest of Pakistan. "The fear of terrorism had negative impact on the two countries," he said. "For the first time the spirit of cooperation was at its high which was never noticed in the previous forerunners of this nature," said Khadem. The participants of the conference asked the US to end direct talks with the Taliban if it refused to end peace and stability in Afghanistan, but Khadem said this point was not included in the resolution of the conference.
