Afghan Soldier Who Fled US Training Site Arrested

BUFFALO, N.Y. - Federal officials have arrested a man accused of deserting from an Afghan military officer who along with two comrades slipped away from a U.S. training exercise in eastern Afghanistan to avoid being sent back home.

Matthew Borowski, the former Buffalo-based immigration attorney for Maj Arshad, said the military recruit has confirmed the existence of foreign fighters in Farsighted and said his main aim is to leave the country. Borowski said he expects the sympathetic immigration judge to grant temporary asylum for the three men.

KABUL - Security officials in southeastern Paktika province said six insurgents were killed in an overnight attack on a border police post.

Life seems to be settling down and the stress is taking a backseat. In fact, if you must head out into the world you’ll want to plug back into the US or Pakistan only if you want to talk about today’s diversion.
