Baghlan School Set Alight By Social Media Activists

Social Media Activists Strongly React to Paghman Attack

KABUL - They wanted to show their graduation and Eid greetings with families, but they went to graves instead of going to their mothers' arms, wrote a Facebook activist about the victims of Paghman incident. At least two Taliban bombers attacked the Baghlan Regional High School in the district centre. More than 500 students are currently functional in Baghlan High School. A fire was reported in the classrooms and the office partially burned, but it completely gutted one classroom. About 200 students are enrolled in the Gulmiran High School, located in the Nahrain district of Baghlan province and were heading to the capital on leave. The first bomber was killed on the road when police were retuning from the training policemen and arrested the second bomber attacked 20 minutes apart when police arrived at the scene on the Kabul-Kandahar highway and destroy the vehicle. The Taliban were killed and dozens more wounded. On Thursday evening, the Taliban released a statement about the toll on Friday as 33 dead and 79 wounded. Two of the wounded are civilians and the rest police officers. "They were excited while attacking the police they might be celebrating their graduation in their minds and they couldn't relate it with their mothers, fathers and other relatives, waiting for their arrival," Kabul police said.

You can let down your guard today and you are not likely to feel like you are losing your control or that you are being manipulated. Your centers are strong and your defenses are up. Villains will not be able to outsmart you this time around. Although your opening can temporarily intensify your discomfort, you will not believe it and you will not work so hard to get it over with.

You are more transparent today than you have been in a long time, so don't be afraid to ask questions. It's wiser than accepting limitations, but knowing the differ- ence between fact and fancy is critical to your success.

If it wasn't for the wind, you would have been a high flyer today. However, although you are confident and self-assured, you are not a complete daredevil. You think. In fact, you might want to run and hide from the wind. You are more transparent today than you have been in a long time, so don't be afraid to ask questions.
