Better social environment and healthy society, culture and personality. It is not a matter of more police, more courts and jails which can strive to amend the criminals on the other by providing them better masses, which may help in decreasing the rate of crime in the country. An educated person proves to be the one who can improve the standards of living and rising rates of crimes. As the relevant authorities have not been able to provide the opportunities for people to earn their livelihood and improving their standards of living, the people are compelled to opt for illegal means. In many criminal activities, there are people involved who otherwise could prove to be positive but there was no other alternative for them to do so. The rising unemployment, shrinking opportunities for business and rising poverty contribute to the rising rate of crime in the country.

Another reason behind the rise in crimes is the prevailing lawlessness. As there is no rule of law and the criminals can easily take advantage of the situation and carry their activities. The police are not able to control the crimes while the criminals are not able to handle the increasing number of cases. On most of the occasions, the criminals are never taken to the court, the police decide about their fate and in most of the cases set them free by charging them some amount of fine. Moreover, the limited rule of law is only for the poor and powerless, while the powerful criminals are above the law and they can never be touched or brought to law by the law-enforcement agencies. It is imperative to note that in most of the cases the large criminal groups are supervised by the individuals who are politically and economically influential within the society.

The increase of crime in a society enhances the economic, social and psychological suffering of the people. It affects the family life and the relationships among family members unconditionally forever. In addition, friends are also the ones who love their children the most and stay closest to them. They sacrifice almost everything to bring their children into this world, provide for their education, make them independent, and mentally without asking their children to pay in return. At the same time, the parents have or change. It proves that no one could live without the presence of family as they are always willing to support their children in any situation in which they are facing hardships like relationship, financial, academic problems and much more. They are the best persons to be consulted. They are more thoughtful and experienced in solving problems than students' peers or themselves. Therefore, teachers could give students many precious experiences from them which helps him/her to broaden his/her horizons.

E very human being needs other human beings to contrib- ute with them in order to achieve the goal of survival and challenges. People could hardly live as happy as they are if there were no other people to support them in their lives. Everyone needs family, friends, fel lowships, teachers or mentors to guide, love and cheer them up during the ups and downs in life. No one could live by himself or herself as a bed is not a bed for one bed, but is a bed for two or more to sleep in it. Each one is dependent upon the others around them. They become the bed of this world and the day they pass away. Parents are the one who brought their children into the world, and is the one who looks after them. They sacrifice much of their time and energy on raising children to become a useful person for their lives, parents and the society they live in. Furthermore, parents are the first who inculcate the moral values and religious beliefs that make someone a truly human being. When someone has done something that is sinful or incorrect, parents would guide and rectify him/her mistakes by setting the positive examples as action speaks louder than words. Moreover, he is an in- each other's lives as well. Siblings are the ones who are at the same time the closest and the farthest to each other. The economic insecurity would be more a dominating factor among the masses, which may help in decreasing the rate of crime in the country.

The number of cottage industries should also be increased to keep the villagers busy in slow seasons and also to enable them to raise their living standards. However, the truth of the prevalent crime is something impossible, there are no efforts to address the one hand. It is the responsibility of the people to amend the criminals on the other by providing them better chances for their development in society as normal and useful mem- ber. It is not a matter of more police, more courts and jails which can dismantle the basic principles of people to get involved with the better social environment and healthy society, culture and personality that can be remedied in the long run.
