against mines, Afghanistan is one of the countries most affected by landmines. About a million landmines and thousands of unexploded ordnances are in Afghanistan, according to the International Committee of the Red Cross.

4) German Authorities...

5) Protests Continue...

6) UK Warplanes...

7) Uzbekistan and Tajikistan to Launch New Bus Routes

DUSHANBE - A number of new routes between the cities of Uzbekistan and Tajikistan may be launched in the near future, “Po- drobroz.a.” reported referring to Minister of transport of Tajikistan Khudoe Khudoe Khudoezoda. A regular bus service was opened between Khujand and Tashkent in mid-May. It was also planned to open new bus routes to other cities of Uzbekistan, but this issue has not been resolved so far. Khudoe Khudoezoda noted that it was only a matter of time, and the Ministry of transport had instructed to resolve this issue as soon as possible.

The state has certain fees for bus services, but these are not very high and cargo. The Uzbek government has abolished the additional fee for the entry and transit of passengers and cargo from Uzbekistan since the last general agreement between the two states, he said.

As noted above, it was noted after the recent meeting of transport warriors of both states that, as the Taliban government is in the process of coordination of with the ministries and departments of transport of the two countries, the creation of such a service will be launched both on our and Uzbek side within a month,” he said.

The minister noted that, the issue of cancellation of payment of entry and transit fees on foreign transport and buses crossing the border of Uzbekistan and Tajikistan has also been resolved now.

Vehicles from Tajikistan can enter the city of Khujand, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, as well as Afghanistan and Kyrgyzstan through the roads of Uzbekistan.

Rival Warplane Projects Underline Europe’s Divisions

TARNOBURG - As Britian’s showy launch of a new fighter jet project this week - Farnborough - did little to quell political tensions that are threatening to tear Europe apart and avert any chance of the future of European defense coop-

British Prime Minister David Cameron has called for a review of the U.S. war, now in its 17th year. Under President Donald Trump, efforts to work toward a peace agreement have already made headlines and evoked criticism of the BMF — a key member since at least 2011 — who was given a warning by the Ministry of Menasight.

In April the local prosecution service is said to have started a stranger regime for the 14-year-old and his, according to Air Force data. Coalition operations have been responsible for more than 14,000 civilian casualties caused by airstrikes.

In the coming week the International Security Assistance Force — ISAF — led by the U.S. in Afghanistan, will withdraw from Afghanistan and transfer security responsibilities to the Afghan government. It is expected that the return of U.S. forces will be a significant blow to the Taliban and its allies.

The Taliban have rejected talks with the government of President Ashraf Ghani, which they see as a sign of the end of the Afghan war. The Taliban’s Laaila Nafis said that they were not interested in talks with the government and that the Taliban would continue their fight until the end.

The BELGIUM—The Belgian government has decided to abandon the project of receiving an F/A-18 fighter jet from the U.S. and to invest in a national fighter program. The government has also decided to invest in the development of a new generation of fighter jets.

In the case of the current French-German defense cooperation project, the German government has agreed on a new fighter jet to be built jointly by the two countries. The French government has also announced that it will provide the necessary financial support for the project.

The German government has also decided to increase its military budget by 50% in the next five years. The budget increase will be used to modernize the German armed forces and to acquire new technologies and equipment.

The German government has also decided to increase its military budget by 50% in the next five years. The budget increase will be used to modernize the German armed forces and to acquire new technologies and equipment.

The German government has also decided to increase its military budget by 50% in the next five years. The budget increase will be used to modernize the German armed forces and to acquire new technologies and equipment.

The German government has also decided to increase its military budget by 50% in the next five years. The budget increase will be used to modernize the German armed forces and to acquire new technologies and equipment.

The German government has also decided to increase its military budget by 50% in the next five years. The budget increase will be used to modernize the German armed forces and to acquire new technologies and equipment.