Afghanistan National Taskforces Team won two Gold Medals in Korea Open Int'l Taekwondo Championships. Farzad Ahmad won the first gold medal and Noor Ahmad Abdullah won the second gold medal for Afghanistan. This victory brought much-awaited awakiness, as always our champions are facing formidable enemies in the field. Afghanistan's national baseball players and their national product and therefore happiness takes precedence over economic prosperity in the form of financial crisis.

Nation building is a must for Afghanistan. Nation-building is constructing or structuring a national identity using the power of the state in the state that so remains politically stable and visible in the long run, which means toTasks to be kept in mind are to determine national identity and modern states are connected to popular rule, to majorities. But the question is the process through which these majorities are constructed.

Afghanistan suffers severely from the lack of national identity that all the ethnic groups accept it as a consensus. Afghanistan nation's builders have not been able to take initiatives to develop national community through government programs, including national content mass schooling. The main ingredients of nation building, namely using of propaganda or major projects to foster social harmony and equal economic growth have been nearly absent in the initiatives on this matter so far. According to Columbia University political scientist Andreas Wimmer, three factors tend to determine the success of nation-building across the long-term: the early development of civil-society organizations, the rise of a state capable of providing public goods evenly across a territory, and the emergence of a shared medium of communication.

Sports as the "shared medium of communication" Research findings show that international sports events, like the FIFA World Cup, regional and national contests, have the ability to bring together people from neighboring and beyond neighboring countries in a spirit of fan, togetherness and, ultimately, peace. Another, study on the role of sport in fostering social integration among different ethnic groups in South African showed that several factors contributed to the unique use of sport being successful in bringing about exchange and building relationships between different ethnic and racial groups. The study reported that students, engaging in a common sport, helps to overcome the barriers of a divided society.

Afghanistan has not acted in an integrated manner to support sport nationalizations, the rise of a state capable of providing public goods evenly across a territory, and the emergence of a shared medium of communication.
