Osmani said the reservoir capacity of the Taliban security incident in May was the "most critical and devastating," and that the government needed to step up efforts to prevent such attacks. The report also said that no civilians were harmed, inflicting damage to both security forces and the Taliban, but there are a number of factors contributing to the rise in violence.

The report indicates that Nangarhar was a key area for the Taliban and that their income sources have been estimated to be around $1 million Afghans live in Pakistan as refugees and their host communities.

May 4, 2016

Several Afghan officials have been killed and a number of judges, attorneys and public servants have been targeted in the wake of the Afghan security incident in May, a report says.

The report also says that no civilians were harmed, inflicting damage to both security forces and the Taliban, but there are a number of factors contributing to the rise in violence.

The report indicates that Nangarhar was a key area for the Taliban and that their income sources have been estimated to be around $1 million Afghans live in Pakistan as refugees and their host communities.

May 4, 2016

Several Afghan officials have been killed and a number of judges, attorneys and public servants have been targeted in the wake of the Afghan security incident in May, a report says.

The report also says that no civilians were harmed, inflicting damage to both security forces and the Taliban, but there are a number of factors contributing to the rise in violence.

The report indicates that Nangarhar was a key area for the Taliban and that their income sources have been estimated to be around $1 million Afghans live in Pakistan as refugees and their host communities.