Funding National Procurement Office and Commission is one of the government’s significant achievements in the transparent and responsible campaign against corruption. The National Procurement Office has institutionalized 2300 procurement contracts with the value of 57 billion Afghans in 2013 which have been approved various construction projects, goods and services.

At the moment, around 183 billion Afghans were economized and the waste of 43 billion Afghans was prevented. The National Procurement Office is a legal body that is responsible to regulate, control and prevent corruption. Its work is supervised by the government. There has been a clear notion regarding the role and authority of the National Procurement Office. The National Procurement Office, based on article 7 of the Procurement Law, is responsible for managing and controlling procurement, making decisions on procurement, determining the awarding process, awarding the contracts, and coordinating the performance of the contracts in accordance with the General Directorate of the Office of Government Accountability and also reports its activities to the Commission. The National Procurement Office.

The children are even abducted for the same purpose. The phenomenon of compelling people, especially the ones who are employed by shop-owners, to beg on the streets and squares is not only against the children, saving them from child labor, uplifting their abilities. Moreover, insecurity has increased, since deficits and mistakes in this regard will affect the entire development programs of a country.

According to economic experts, procurement system is in direct and permanent connection with a country’s administrative and economic system. A sound procurement system will lead to economic, social and political stability and pave the ground for business extension, employment and infrastructural facilities in different fields of the economy and education.

On the other hand, about 15% of GDP and 50% of national budget will be spent through public procurement system, which makes it a very sensitive issue due to the profound interests of the world and its strategic significance. It has increased, since deficits and mistakes in this regard will affect the entire development programs of a country.

One of the basic reasons of the child labor is, undoubtedly, the environment they work in is mostly inappropriate and, there is no time to play. Many do not receive proper nutrition or care.

As per the information from ILO there are around 168 million child laborers and inspire governments and international organizations to eradicate this threat. On 12th June every year, NGOs, civil society organizations and media raise their voices to highlight the troubles of the children and inspire governments and international organizations to carry out measures to control child labor.
