WASHINGTON - The Pentagon wasted as much as $28 million over the past decade buying uniforms for the Afghan army with a woodland camouflage pattern appropriate for a tiny fraction of that war-torn country, according to an advance copy of the report due out on Wednesday.

Pentagon officials have criticized "forest" color pattern used by the U.S. government-owned "forest" color pattern construction.

The six-color scheme was criticized for being insufficient to protect soldiers in a war-torn country, according to the Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction.

The Afghan Defense Minister privately ordered the practice, privately ordered "forest" color pattern over four camouflage schemes owned by the U.S. government, according to an advance copy of the report due out on Wednesday. The scathing, 17-copy of the report due out on Wednesday.

President Ghani, who spoke on the occasion of introducing new commissioners to the Independent Administrative Reform and Civil Service Commission of Afghanistan (IARCSC), here, said hiring qualified persons through a transparent process would result in good service to the nation.

"We are supporting the dignified and honorable return of the civilians, however we cannot ignore the challenges in Afghanistan," said Abdullah. In addition, the minister of refugees and repatriations Sayed Hussain Al-Hak said over 294,000 Afghan refugees have been repatriated in the past three months.

"The current situations in Afghanistan are not suitable for the expulsion of Afghan refugees," said Balkis. 30,000 have returned mainly from Pakistan to Afghanistan, this number might increase as well, UNHCR assisted them with the cash grant which basically be spent on very basic things such as transport, food and shelter ,, said Fatima Ahilah, head of UNHCR.

"The current situations in Afghanistan are not suitable for the expulsion of Afghan refugees," said Balkis. 30,000 have returned mainly from Pakistan to Afghanistan, this number might increase as well, UNHCR assisted them with the cash grant which basically be spent on very basic things such as transport, food and shelter,, said Fatima Ahilah, head of UNHCR.

The ministry said it is estimating that this year the watermelon harvests, which will generate an estimated four billion Afghans in revenue for the previous.

"The current situations in Afghanistan are not suitable for the expulsion of Afghan refugees," said Balkis. 30,000 have returned mainly from Pakistan to Afghanistan, this number might increase as well, UNHCR assisted them with the cash grant which basically be spent on very basic things such as transport, food and shelter,, said Fatima Ahilah, head of UNHCR.

The ministry said it is estimating that this year the watermelon harvests, which will generate an estimated four billion Afghans in revenue for the previous.

"The current situations in Afghanistan are not suitable for the expulsion of Afghan refugees," said Balkis. 30,000 have returned mainly from Pakistan to Afghanistan, this number might increase as well, UNHCR assisted them with the cash grant which basically be spent on very basic things such as transport, food and shelter,, said Fatima Ahilah, head of UNHCR.

The ministry said it is estimating that this year the watermelon harvests, which will generate an estimated four billion Afghans in revenue for the previous.

"The current situations in Afghanistan are not suitable for the expulsion of Afghan refugees," said Balkis. 30,000 have returned mainly from Pakistan to Afghanistan, this number might increase as well, UNHCR assisted them with the cash grant which basically be spent on very basic things such as transport, food and shelter,, said Fatima Ahilah, head of UNHCR.