(1) Taliban ...

A security official on condition of anonymity has told Pajhwok Afghan News there were 200 incidents fighting against the government forces this year so far.

"If extra troops do not arrive, there will be no security for the people," he said.

(11) Khanzad Wars ...

(12) A coalition ...

(13) Taliban ...

He also noted that the Taliban did not have the capability to fight face-to-face.

Remi Pinnix, Kajani administration spokesman, said the plant had been established to stop building roadside explosives and improve Ghor's economy, but the Taliban does not have the capability to fight face-to-face.

(14) Afghanistan ...

The Taliban have killed more than 10,000 people and wounded another 20,000 people in the province so far this year.

Last week, Sayed Habib Hassani, aerial operations officer for Kajani military wing, said the Taliban had stopped 18 food trucks that were on their way to Kajani and had taken their drivers as hostages.

The Kajani district head acknowledged the incident but said the five drivers were unaccounted for. (Pajhwok)

March 26, 2015

(1) No American ...

"We will sacrifice for the sake of peace," Vinod K. Thomas, said.

Following a dispute between tribes over the copper mines, the region is now a complete war zone.

Michael Dukakis, Democratic nominee for the presidential elections of 1988, before making his announcement.

Mr. President, I've asked you to order the withdrawal of these forces. I've been assigned this task specifically because it's impossible to form an administration in Afghanistan with the equipment and human resources that the U.S. military has available.

Mr. President, I've asked for the withdrawal of these forces because it's impossible to form an administration in Afghanistan.

After that, Mr. President, I've been assigned this task specifically because it's impossible to form an administration in Afghanistan with the equipment and human resources that the U.S. military has available.

"We will sacrifice for the sake of peace," Vinod K. Thomas, said. (Pajhwok)

(4) Taliban ...

A security official on condition of anonymity has told Pajhwok Afghan News there were 200 incidents fighting against the government forces this year so far.

"If extra troops do not arrive, there will be no security for the people," he said.

(11) Khanzad Wars ...

(12) A coalition ...

(13) Taliban ...

He also noted that the Taliban did not have the capability to fight face-to-face.

Remi Pinnix, Kajani administration spokesman, said the plant had been established to stop building roadside explosives and improve Ghor's economy, but the Taliban does not have the capability to fight face-to-face.

(14) Afghanistan ...

The Taliban have killed more than 10,000 people and wounded another 20,000 people in the province so far this year.

Last week, Sayed Habib Hassani, aerial operations officer for Kajani military wing, said the Taliban had stopped 18 food trucks that were on their way to Kajani and had taken their drivers as hostages.

The Kajani district head acknowledged the incident but said the five drivers were unaccounted for. (Pajhwok)

March 26, 2015

(1) No American ...

"We will sacrifice for the sake of peace," Vinod K. Thomas, said.

Following a dispute between tribes over the copper mines, the region is now a complete war zone.

Michael Dukakis, Democratic nominee for the presidential elections of 1988, before making his announcement.

Mr. President, I've asked you to order the withdrawal of these forces. I've been assigned this task specifically because it's impossible to form an administration in Afghanistan with the equipment and human resources that the U.S. military has available.

Mr. President, I've asked for the withdrawal of these forces because it's impossible to form an administration in Afghanistan.

After that, Mr. President, I've been assigned this task specifically because it's impossible to form an administration in Afghanistan with the equipment and human resources that the U.S. military has available.

"We will sacrifice for the sake of peace," Vinod K. Thomas, said. (Pajhwok)

(4) Taliban ...

A security official on condition of anonymity has told Pajhwok Afghan News there were 200 incidents fighting against the government forces this year so far.

"If extra troops do not arrive, there will be no security for the people," he said.

(11) Khanzad Wars ...

(12) A coalition ...

(13) Taliban ...

He also noted that the Taliban did not have the capability to fight face-to-face.

Remi Pinnix, Kajani administration spokesman, said the plant had been established to stop building roadside explosives and improve Ghor's economy, but the Taliban does not have the capability to fight face-to-face.

(14) Afghanistan ...

The Taliban have killed more than 10,000 people and wounded another 20,000 people in the province so far this year.

Last week, Sayed Habib Hassani, aerial operations officer for Kajani military wing, said the Taliban had stopped 18 food trucks that were on their way to Kajani and had taken their drivers as hostages.

The Kajani district head acknowledged the incident but said the five drivers were unaccounted for. (Pajhwok)