ISTANBUL - Turkish agency helps 2,000 families in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON - A top Republican senator has urged the Trump Administration to address the urgent security situation in Afghanistan in view of recent terrorist attacks.

"The security situation in Afghanistan demands the urgent attention of President Trump and his administration," Senator John McCain, chairman of the powerful Senate Armed Services Committee said on Thursday.

He was speaking a day after three simultaneous suicide attacks by Taliban in Kabul killed 22 people and wounded over 100.

John McCain said another district had reportedly fallen to Taliban in northern Afghanistan - a setback coming on the heels of disturbing losses in other different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different places of Afghanistan, to nearly 2,000 families in different...
