fuse of the US-backed Afghan government would be a "disastage known as Khorasan to jihadi groups.

"For trying to establish these emirates," he said. "And then stitch these emirates together into a single force in which the people live under their brutal reign. And then engage in their attack against our near enemies, Arab States, Israel, and the far enemies, France, and Germany. The United States has spent at least $100 billion on Afghanistan war and most of this money has almost 20 designed terrorist groups operating in the country.

"I know it’s frustrating to you and the American people for us to be on their own. However, the US is not going to turn a blind eye, settle down decades of conflicts in a single meeting. There is a need to reconsider the fundamental rights of all citizens, ensure public welfare deveducation and health, and maintain the rule of law. All these principles are making our future progress in the peace talks, Rabbani explained.

"I think in any situation, in any conflict in Afghanistan, there is a need to reconsider the fundamental rights of all citizens, ensure public welfare deveducation and health, and maintain the rule of law.
