Germany to Spend $106 Billion on Refugees

BERLIN - Germany's federal government expects to spend $106.5 billion on refugees over the next decade, the minister of finance said on Saturday. The plan was approved by the national parliament. Hull said the amount was the "last thing we need to make the remark at an economic emergency" and that it was "the single most important thing for people to focus on." Hull said it was "the best way to handle the crisis of our lifetime" and that it would really make the remark at an economic emergency.
