A State Should Promote General Welfare

In the present times, mostly among the developed nations, there is a greater emphasis on the positive role of the state; because it is the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right. The state must protect and promote the welfare of the people. There are many things of general well-being which are not provided by the efforts of individuals and associations either because their private efforts are insufficient or they are incapable of doing so. The state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right. The state must protect and promote the welfare of the people. There are many things of general well-being which are not provided by the efforts of individuals and associations either because their private efforts are insufficient or they are incapable of doing so.

It is important to understand from another point of view that human personality in general cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. Human personality cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. In modern state new aspects have been brought into the picture of human development. Modern state cannot merely provide for health and security, but the people of this society have the right to expect that their state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right.

Afghanistan’s Main Concerns

The views and opinions in the articles are those of the authors and do not reflect the views or opinions of the Daily Outlook Afghanistan.

From the Editors

May 15, 2016

Lawbreaking: A Common Practice

By Dilawar Sherzai

Afghanistan in the contemporary society is a country which is not troubled by the common people. There are many other problems which will make the Afghan government unable to get its national objectives accomplished. Some of these problems are directly linked to insecurity; like, people are not able to enjoy a safe and comfortable life. With the growing concerns in Afghanistan, the prospects of peace and security are not so hopeful. The Afghan government must take measures to resolve these problems. Afghanistan has modern and is in accordance with international civil and democratic standards. For instance, considering innocence as original and in accordance with the rule of law, the protection of the rights and dignity of the public and its respective security, the Afghan government has the right to exercise its natural rights, that is to say, to life, liberty and property.

Furthermore, modern state now assumes the duty of promoting general welfare. It is important to understand from another point of view that human personality in general cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. Human personality cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. In modern state new aspects have been brought into the picture of human development. Modern state cannot merely provide for health and security, but the people of this society have the right to expect that their state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right.

It is important to understand from another point of view that human personality in general cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. Human personality cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. In modern state new aspects have been brought into the picture of human development. Modern state cannot merely provide for health and security, but the people of this society have the right to expect that their state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right.

It is important to understand from another point of view that human personality in general cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. Human personality cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. In modern state new aspects have been brought into the picture of human development. Modern state cannot merely provide for health and security, but the people of this society have the right to expect that their state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right.

It is important to understand from another point of view that human personality in general cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. Human personality cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. In modern state new aspects have been brought into the picture of human development. Modern state cannot merely provide for health and security, but the people of this society have the right to expect that their state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right.

It is important to understand from another point of view that human personality in general cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. Human personality cannot develop freely without the external conditions of social living which are of universal concern in view of the achievements of the modern times. In modern state new aspects have been brought into the picture of human development. Modern state cannot merely provide for health and security, but the people of this society have the right to expect that their state should be the custodian of the future of the nation. It must consider the welfare of the individual state and will justify its existence in the future generations. The state with its command on the resources and its universal reach can build for the future in ways that an individual cannot. It can take different constructive plans and projects whose benefits will be shared by the future generations. Individually and collectively, the people of a country have the right to expect their state to use its resources and its methods to benefit and protect the public. This is a natural right of the citizens and the democratic state is expected to protect this right.