BEIJING - Beijing has warned the US against taking the so-called “Long Arm Jurisdiction” and should refrain from issuing new trade worries.

The two diplomats also discussed the situation in the Middle East, in particular the standoff between the US and Iran. Beijinig upalled on both parties to show restraint and avoid further escalation, emphasizing its firm position against Washington’s “Long Arm Jurisdiction” policies.

Tensions in the Middle East have been escalating over the past few weeks, with the US reported that it recently uncovered possibly a brand-new intelligence, which showed Iran threatened to its territory and thus the BCJ said it operationalized national resources against that threat.

"When a threat is posed more serious than usual, we feel we must play a more consistent role as the state vector of the country,“ the foreign minister said.

"But, in the current situation, we will have to deal with it through diplomatic means and through international law," he added.

For Ukrainians, Economic Crisis Loses Larger Than US Tensions

TEHRAN, Iran - Across a long capital, hard times always seem to come back to haunt the political elite. Battled by US sanctions and its depreciating currency, 8 million people struggle to meet basic needs while others struggle to make ends meet. The current economic situation in the country is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system.

A new US presidential administration under Joe Biden, has been taking a hard line against Iran, imposing new sanctions and threatening military action.

However, despite the tensions, the Iranian government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.

The economic situation in Iran is described as a threat to social stability and to the unity of the Iranian political system. Despite international sanctions, the government has been trying to find ways to reduce the impact of the sanctions and to find new ways to engage with the international community.