I/pronoun understand their rights and duties and make efforts to fulfill their duties and respect for values and ethics, which can be a ray of hope in combating the vice versa; therefore, the society and systems must ensure that the rights and responsibilities should be inculcated within the individuals by the society and its institutions. A society that is well-managed and properly ruled does not have basic and necessary understanding of their rights and obligations. It can be argued that societies and systems are created for the people and not the vice versa; therefore, the society and systems must ensure that the rights of the inhabitants of a nation are respected. It is a true certain extent a nation is only one side of the picture. The other side of the picture reveals that no society there are inhabitants that have particular roles and positions, which demand a particular set of obligations and responsibilities that have to be performed by them. Moreover, in a collective in life, rules are set and regulations that are required to be followed and practiced and these rules and regulations basically ensure harmony within the society. The citizens are required to respect these rules and regulations and are responsible to practice them. Have performed these responsibilities there can be accommodation where the rights are protected and peace and tranquility are maintained.

It is a very strict that if the government performs their responsibilities properly and guard the rights of their children, the children in return will have a better responsibility. They would understand the rights of their parents. It is a world if the parents themselves do not perform their responsibilities properly and provide the children with the right upbringing. The children will not be able to understand what is right and wrong and they will perform their duties and responsibilities in response to any situation. The same is the case with the political institutions. They are not developed and properly controlled. If the government and its authorities are accountable, and, as a result, are not able to nurture the politicians properly and make them more vigilant towards their rights and duties. It is a very strict that if the whole society goes through a process of transformation. From individual to the collective life, people must understand their duties and responsibilities and demand their due rights. Most importantly, there should be awareness campaigns among the students who are the greatest basic understanding of civic life. The society must have effective rules and regulations that are properly set, and we need to be vigilant about children proper upbringing and to turn them into responsible citizens. The social institutions are dominated by the people who consider wealth, influence and family status as entitlements for merit. Therefore, they do not consider the duties and responsibilities that the children should perform. The society, in the same way, is not accountable. They are not developed and properly controlled. If the government and its authorities are accountable, and, as a result, are not able to nurture the politicians properly and make them more vigilant towards their rights and duties.

It is a very strict that if the society goes through a process of transformation. From individual to the collective life, people must understand their duties and responsibilities and demand their due rights. Most importantly, there should be awareness campaigns among the students who are the greatest basic understanding of civic life. The society must have effective rules and regulations that are properly set, and we need to be vigilant about children proper upbringing and to turn them into responsible citizens.

It is a very strict that if the government performs their responsibilities properly and guard the rights of their children, the children in return will have a better responsibility. They would understand the rights of their parents. It is a world if the parents themselves do not perform their responsibilities properly and provide the children with the right upbringing. The children will not be able to understand what is right and wrong and they will perform their duties and responsibilities in response to any situation. The same is the case with the political institutions. They are not developed and properly controlled. If the government and its authorities are accountable, and, as a result, are not able to nurture the politicians properly and make them more vigilant towards their rights and duties. It is a very strict that if the whole society goes through a process of transformation. From individual to the collective life, people must understand their duties and responsibilities and demand their due rights. Most importantly, there should be awareness campaigns among the students who are the greatest basic understanding of civic life. The society must have effective rules and regulations that are properly set, and we need to be vigilant about children proper upbringing and to turn them into responsible citizens.

It is a very strict that if the government performs their responsibilities properly and guard the rights of their children, the children in return will have a better responsibility. They would understand the rights of their parents. It is a world if the parents themselves do not perform their responsibilities properly and provide the children with the right upbringing. The children will not be able to understand what is right and wrong and they will perform their duties and responsibilities in response to any situation. The same is the case with the political institutions. They are not developed and properly controlled. If the government and its authorities are accountable, and, as a result, are not able to nurture the politicians properly and make them more vigilant towards their rights and duties.