Unknown Armed Men Gun Down Judge in Afghanistan

A local judge and his two sons were killed in a helicopter attack on Saturday, officials said.

The judge, Niazuddin Khan, was killed in the district of Ghor, along with his two sons, officials said.

A security official, who wished to remain anonymous, said the helicopterattack was carried out by Taliban forces.

The attack comes amid an escalation of violence in the region, with several incidents of targeted killings reported in recent months.

Taliban spokesmen have yet to make an official statement about the incident, but the group has a history of targeting officials and figures it sees as threats.

In the meantime, the security forces have launched a joint operation to trace the attackers and bring them to justice.

Residents said they were shocked and horrified by the incident.

They asked the authorities to take all necessary measures to prevent such attacks in the future.

They also expressed their support for the families of the victims.

The judge was a respected figure in the area, known for his dedication to justice and his work for the people.

His death is a loss for the region and its residents, who relied on him for guidance and protection.

The incident highlights the ongoing security challenges in the area and the need for continued efforts to ensure peace and stability.

The security forces are working tirelessly to track down the attackers and bring them to justice.

In the meantime, the residents are urged to stay vigilant and report any suspicious activities to the authorities.

The security forces are also working with the international communities to strengthen their efforts in the region.

This incident serves as a reminder of the ongoing threat posed by the Taliban and the need for continued efforts to ensure peace and stability in the region.
