As US Retreats, China Touts Its Trade Deals Wares to Asia

SINGAPORE - China is testing the waters of global commerce as its world-renowned trade facilitation effort hammers out the world’s largest trade deal with the United States. Negotiators are meeting in Singapore, where a massive Beijing-backed agreement covering 97% of world’s population has dominated headlines. Diplomats have been trying to nail down details as the entities in its join to part in an as yet to be named to President Donald Trump’s “America First” protectionist trade policy.

The US has imposed roughly half of what it exports from China, prompting Beijing to retaliate with its own levies. China, Japan, India and Indonesia are part of a Pacific region that the US has now stepped away from. However, this has not stopped Chinese leaders from pushing the progress already made. During a meeting with Southeast Asia leaders, Chinese President Xi Jinping said he was hopeful. America’s Pacific partners are expected to announce progress on the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP) later Wednesday.

Trump ‘Bashes’ UK’s May after She Calls to Congratulate Him on Midterm Results

LONDON, Donald Trump’s turbulent European tour started with aSTS with an anti-Brexit protest in London, Wednesday, where his provocations are being watched with alarm in Washington, a Brussels, and across the Atlantic, where some expect the US to start a new trade war.

The US president was in London for a three-day visit. The US president, who was allegedly in a foul mood, bristled May over Britain not doing enough to support his anti-terror agenda, questioned her handling of Brexit negotiations and accused the continent of being uncooperative than their trade relations with the US.

The episode was not the only one that marred Trump’s trip to the continent, the commemorations of the end of World War I. There were quite a few, particularly, Trump’s verbal sparring with the host, the French President Emmanuel Macron and the British PM, which was the US president’s decision not to attend a ceremony honoring military sacrifices made during the war. The report implies Trump’s words were “without excuse” for making several events, including the time capsule takeaway of the Roosevelt’s army.
