Uncontrolled Rise in Opium Production This Year

By Hujjatullah Zia

There are many states with manifold cities in the world, and some of them are in need of open spaces for women. Kabul is a city in dire need of such open spaces for women or men without being watched by lustful eyes. A number of men do it a certain right to watch women’s body for pleasure. Sometimes, even some woman observers, observing the women, the pain of which will be felt only by women. Jane Jacobs in a greatest bestowed about said that a city street equipped to handle strangers, and to make a safety area, becomes the presence of the streets, as the streets of successful city neighborhoods always do, must have the sidewalks.

First, there must be a clear demarcation between what is public space and what is private space. Public and private spaces cannot exist one into each other. Both are different types of spaces.

Second, the sidewalks must have women on it. It is famously known that no man can walk in a street without lustful eyes on the street, eyes belonging to those we might call the natural progenitors of the street. They believe that adding more police presence will not solve the problem. Indeed, it does not solve the root problem nor tap into the real power of making them stop. Women civilians or officials asks say that they feel sense of safety. The real way a street is made safer is an uncommitted 第三, there are rooms where residents are the only occupants. The streets that are the streets of the people they occupy the street on their own, not necessarily with conscious effort, but while going about their daily business. While they are walking the sidewalk, people want to do things.

Kabul and a Women’s Garden

By Fatima Fazi

There are many states with manifold cities in the world, and some of them are in need of open spaces for women. Kabul is a city in dire need of such open spaces for women or men without being watched by lustful eyes. A number of men do it a certain right to watch women’s body for pleasure. Sometimes, even some woman observers, observing the women, the pain of which will be felt only by women. Jane Jacobs in a greatest bestowed about said that a city street equipped to handle strangers, and to make a safety area, becomes the presence of the streets, as the streets of successful city neighborhoods always do, must have the sidewalks.

First, there must be a clear demarcation between what is public space and what is private space. Public and private spaces cannot exist one into each other. Both are different types of spaces.

Second, the sidewalks must have women on it. It is famously known that no man can walk in a street without lustful eyes on the street, eyes belonging to those we might call the natural progenitors of the street. They believe that adding more police presence will not solve the problem. Indeed, it does not solve the root problem nor tap into the real power of making them stop. Women civilians or officials asks say that they feel sense of safety. The real way a street is made safer is an uncommitted...